CHIEF HUGH H. BYRNE OF THE LA CROSSE POLICE DEPARTMENT DIES AT ST. FRANCIS HOSPITAL

FAMILY AT BEDSIDE WHEN END COMES

PATIENT FAILS TO RALLY FROM SINKING SPELL

BREATHES HIS LAST AT 6:20

Jaundice and Gall Stones Prove Fatal to Well Known Officer—Funeral on Wednesday Morning

Hugh Henry Byrne, chief of the La Crosse police department for the last seventeen years, and known throughout the northwest and entire country as one of the ablest of police heads, died this morning at 6:20 o'clock at the St. Francis hospital, following an operation for gall stones performed at the institution on Oct. 5. Chief Byrne also was afflicted with jaundice. He rallied from the operation, and grew stronger until Saturday morning, when he began to fail.

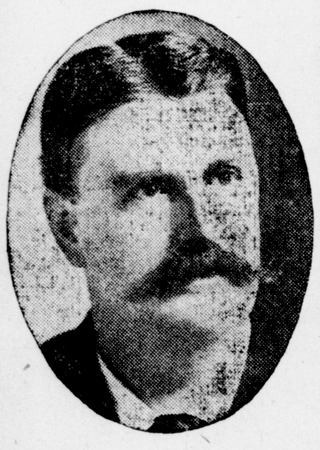

Saturday night and Sunday the chief grew worse, dying this morning surrounded by friends, and relatives. His wife was present at his bedside when he died.

Chief Byrne was stricken about six weeks ago, but was ill at his home less than week. A few days' rest sufficed to restore him partially, but he was stricken again later, and an operation was deemed necessary to save his life. This was performed on Oct. 5, and appeared successful, but the chief was unable to withstand the shock.

Chief Byrne was born at Shullsburg, Wis., Feb. 29, 1852, and was 55 years old at the time of his death. He was born in leap year. His parents were John and Catherine Byrne, each born near Pittsburg, Pa. Chief Byrne received a common school education in his home town.

At the age of 22 years, on Jan. 25, 1874, Mr. Byrne came to La Crosse and learned the trade of machinist and engineer. He was employed in one of the large La Crosse saw mills. His first acquaintance with police work and duty came in March, 1879, when he was appointed a patrolman. He served in this capacity for two years.

In 1876 Mr. Byrne entered the employ of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company as a detective, having charge of the property of the company at La Crosse. He remained with this company for nine years, as special agent.

On Oct. 10, 1890, Mr. Byrne was appointed chief of police of La Crosse by John Deugler, then acting mayor, and has served in this capacity ever since.

In 1894 a contest ensued over the appointment of the police and fire commission. Dr. Frank Powell, "White Beaver," appointed a commission while in St. Paul, while J. B. Murray, the president of the council, also appointed a commission. This was about one week before James McCord, mayor-elect, took his office. When he was inaugurated he also appointed a commission.

President Murray and Attorney Joseph W. Losey contested the appointment of White Beaver, on the ground that he was out of the state, when the appointment was made. The case was fought to the supreme court, where a decision in favor of President Murray and his commis-

REV. C. N. MOLLER ASSAILS FAKERS OF "FAITH HEALING"

INSTRUMENT OF TEACHING THE FAITH IS MISUNDERSTOOD

BODY NEEDS THE PHYSICIAN

Urges Common Sense and Says Cure of Little Individual was Not Purpose of Miracles

"St. Luke, the beloved physician, Col. IV, 14," was the text of a strong sermon preached by Rev. C. N. Moller at Christ church yesterday. The discourse was an appeal to common sense against the various "healers" of which there are many brands. Answering the argument presented by those devotees of so-called psycological healing that the Christ was the first healer of their own kind, by pointing to the real purpose of the miracles as reaching beyond the little personal ills affected, to the impression of a lesson destined to reach all humanity, the pastor gave food for a feast of thought to those whose susceptibility has caused them to be led away from both science and religion into the realms of fanaticism. The sermon follows:

"St. Luke, the Beloved Physician."
(Sermon by Rev. C. N. Moller.)

At this time each year it is my custom to commemorate the life and work of the "beloved physician," S. Luke, and in some measure to recognize the high mission and splendid service of the members of his fraternity through all the centuries of Christian history.

It is a strange fact that the Saviour's divine ministry to the bodies and souls of men and the ministry of His followers, both priest and physician have been so misunderstood and have suffered all manner of reproach and suspicion and general opposition by certain classes and conditions of people whose name is legion. If there is anything that

AUDITORIUM FOR SINGERS AT FAIR

Secretary Fritz Kersting of Freeport notified Secretary John L. Utermoehl of the local Saengerfest society today that he wished to secure hotel accommodation for about 30 of their active singers who desire to attend the fest.

The president of the Saengerfest, Theoodre C. Behrens, will pay the local secretary another visit in a few days for the purpose of assisting in the location of a suitable structure in which to hold the fest.

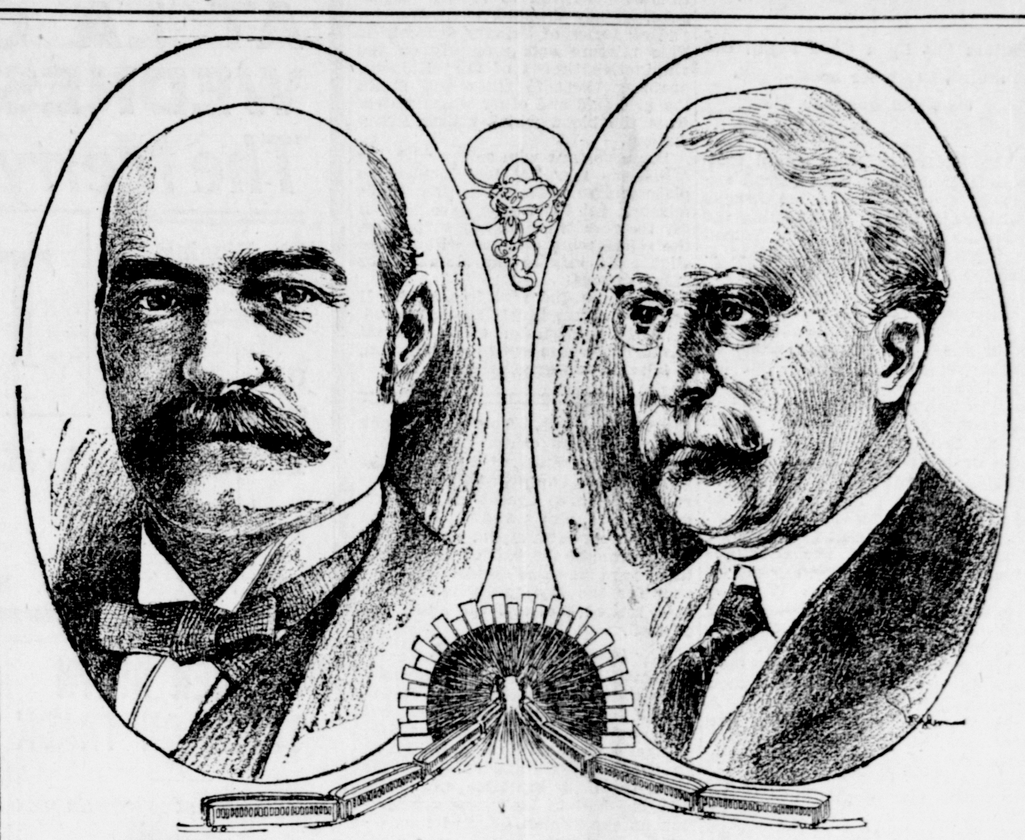

At present, since the downing of the auditorium project the Central society expects that the plan of the city officials to establish a building on the fair grounds, will be carried through.

The building is to be erected jointly by the Inter State Fair association, street car association, city, and the local saengerfest association.

The secretary of the former fest, C. F. Tretin, of St. Paul, has written Mr. Utermoehl that his council is now rehearsing the songs and that his entire council of singers will attend the La Crosse Saengerfest.

"I FEEL THE ROPE," SAID FRED MAIGLL

DECATUR, Ill., Oct. 14.—The state scored a point today in the Magill trial when Mrs. Elmira Downey testified that Mrs. Magill's body was wrapped in a blanket in such a manner that it could only have been put there by outside aid. She was first on the scene after the death. She declared that when Magill learned an inquest would be necessary he exclaimed: "My God, these d— people will think I killed her. I feel the rope around my neck already."

C. E. Oakman, the undertaker who prepared the body, told of seeing Fay Magill visit Magill frequently.

TELEGRAPHERS CRITICISE TEDDY

ACCUSED OF CARRYING SCAB OPERATOR ON TRIP

BETTER READ SIGNS OF TIMES

So Says Bulletin Issued from Milwaukee Council of the Organization and Received Here.

In a bulletin issued by the Milwaukee council No. 2, of the striking telegraph operators, President Roosevelt is severely criticised for carrying two scab operators with him on his pleasure trip, and is advised to read the "signs of the times" and dispense with their services at once.

There is no evidence here that the order of President Small to return to work will be followed by the strikers. Their disposition seems to be to oust Small and put in a man who has more fight in him.

It is announced here that the Federation of Labor with 20,000 members has issued an assessment of 10 cents per week per member for the aid of the strike fund which will net $2,000 per week.

Speaking of the meeting called in New York and of the presidential incident the bulletin says:

"We hope that the board of directors makes it so warm for Bob that he will be more than willing to meet the strikers and arange a satisfactory settlement. If the directors give him thirty days more in which to beat us it will be up to us to see that the cable operators are called out at once. Now is the time to put the screws on, and not be particular how hard we turn them.

"We regret that the president of the United States has so far forgotten the confidence placed in him by the laboring world as to consent to travel around on his pleasure trip with two scab telegraphers, and hope that he will be able to read the signs of the times and refuse to have them accompany him in the future.

"We are still sticking at his end of the wire, and from all indications will continue to do so until we are accorded the privilege of exercising our rights as American citizens."

Urge Caution.

A letter was received by the La Crosse striking telegraphers today instructing them that President Small's action in ordering the men back to work had no sanction of officials, and to disregard all and any orders or letters they received without the official seal of the union.

The letter ends:

"We have the strike won and look for a surrender of the companies by next Tuesday or Wednesday. Stick."

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A. N. Brainerd, the Standard Oil comptroller, was called to the stand to testify about the company's records. He is in poor health and failed to throw much light on disputed points.

Brainerd testified that he is comptroller of Standard Oil of New Jersey, New York, Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, California, the Atlantic Refining company, Solar Refining company and West India Oil company. Kellogg showed the witness a balance sheet of the Anglo-American company, of which Brainerd is secretary, since 1905, showing James McDonald owed the company $2,125,000. All Brainerd knew about it was that the entry was on the books when he took charge Kellogg contends that this amount represents the purchase price of the Manhattan Oil company, and Brainerd was instructed to bring to court the books showing the loans of the company.

MISS MOLSTAD'S VIEWS ON READING

READS INTERESTING PAPER BEFORE TEACHERS

IS AN OLD, OLD PROBLEM

West Salem Teacher Points Out Two Reasons why Subject is Always a Paramount One

Among the many interesting papers read before the Western Wisconsin Teachers' convention which ended here Saturday evening, was one of particular interest by Miss Amy E. Molstad of West Salem. Miss Molstad took as her topic, "Some General Thoughts on Reading" and spoke as follows:

Perhaps the greatest "bone of contention" among educators of all times has been the subject of reading. No institute or teacher's meeting is quite complete without a discussion of some phase of this subject; all institutions of learning strive to reach a high degree of excellency in this art.

The reason must, at least, be twofold, the subject must be of great importance, and results obtained thus far not entirely satisfactory. It does not require any lengthy decision to demonstrate the former; and with the latter we are brought face to face daily.

Poor oral reading usually manifests itself in two ways in incorrect pronunciation and indistinct articulation, and in lack of expression.

Without doubt a great deal of poor enunciation is due to vocal laziness and careless habits; for, actual cases of physically defective vocal organisms are uncommon.

Ordinarily then, there is no legitimate excuse for mumbling and swallowing of words and the teacher who tolerates this is committing a great wrong. A child with such habits fixed upon him is handicapped for life. The world receives his messages with distrust and indifference; whereas, it listens intently and eagerly to him whose speech is clear, distinct, and vigorous. The former portrays weakness and lack of confidence; the latter is the very symbol of strength, dignity and self reliance.

Time spent, then, in practical pronunciation drills and in vigorous practice for the perfect production of the elementary sounds, is far from wasted.

Yet this is but the shell, the kernel lies in what is termed expression.

Why does the child who speaks freely and effectively elsewhere fail miserably when confronted with the same or similar expression on the printed page? What has become of his energy, his vivacity, his variety of expression?

Expressionless reading results from two conditions primarily—either the lesson is not adapted to the child or the child is not properly adjusted to the lesson and to his environment.

If the lesson be too difficult he fails not only in the calling of words but also in getting the thought, and ef-

UNIONS REPUDIATE SMALL AND VOTE TO FIGHT

CALL SPECIAL CONVENTION

Milwaukee Meeting Must Decide on Future Management of Telegraph Strike

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—The executive committee of the National Telegraphers, under authority given in the constitution, has suspended President S. J. Small, alleging that he is "weak-kneed," and that he has not been loyal to the cause of the strikers.

The action was precipitated by a communication by Small in which he declared the strikers to be without means of continuing, and that the fight was hopeless, and urged that they surrender.

This action was followed by a storm of protest, culminating in the removal of Small. It may also result in the calling out of the leased wire and brokerage men. The position of Small has been repudiated by all the cities heard from excepting Boston, and desertion of the commercial union to join the railroad telegraphers' organization is feared.

After an all night vigil the executive board returned to headquarters this morning, convinced that diplomacy will be necessary to avert a split in the ranks.

Small's removal puts Konenkamp in full charge, but his appointment is temporary. Westley Russell, who is the highest official left, this morning had a message deposing Small posted as follows: "To S. J. Small, Astor House, New York. Under article fifteen, Section 7, of the constitution of the C. T. U. A. of America, you are hereby suspended from the office of president. This order is effective immediately. By the committee."

The strike will be conducted by the direction of the general executive board. Operators here continue to heap abuse upon Small. The opinion seems to prevail in some quarters that Small's action brings the strikers nearer demoralization than ever, and radicals seem to be anxious to desert the union and go with the order of railway telegraphers. This would mean defeat, but reprots from various cities announce the operators' willingness to desert.

Following their all night session, the executive committee today called a special convention of the national organization to be held in Milwaukee Oct. 23, to "consider ways and means to make the strike more effective, to investigate charges against President Small and if necessary to elect his successor; each local to be represented by one delegate."

The call for the convention is signed by Konenkamp, acting chairman, and M. C. Reidy, J. M. Sullivan of the general board. As Small has been a valuable champion of labor for years, it has been suggested that he be accorded fair play.

The sensation of the day is the charge that members of the employers' association have boycotted the strikers. One striker secured employment as a floor walker in a departemnt store, and when his employer learned he was a striker he

CUBS GET PENNANT IN FOUR STRAIGHT

TIGERS NOT IN THE RUNNING AT ANY TIME

FINAL SCORE IS TWO TO 0

Owner of Detroit Club, However, Is Not Discouraged and Gives His Players $15,000 Bonus

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 14.—Saturday's game finished the "Tigers, the Cubs winning by a final score of 2 to 0, thereby taking the world's championship series in four straight games in which the Tigers didn't have a look in.

Taking advantage of every slip made by the local players and running the bases cleverly, they scored two runs in the first two innings, while the Detroit team did not succeed in getting one man over the home plate.

The "rooters" who had followed the Chicago team from their home city swarmed down to the diamond when the ninth inning closed and showered the players with congratulations. Then several hundred of them formed in line and marched down Michigan avenue, headed by a band, cheering and singing in celebration of their victory.

Tigers' Tail Droops.

It was a disappointing day for the local team in more ways than one. The weather was raw and cold, entirely unfit for baseball, and less than half of the expected 15,000 to 18,000 people attended the game. The official count of the attendance was 7,370. The temperature was below 50 degrees and a raw wind swept across the field throughout the game. The sun broke through the clouds only once, and then but for a few moments.

President William H. Yawkey of the Detroit American League Baseball club added as a gift to his players for winning the American league pennant $15,000 to their share of the receipts from the world's series, making $36,973.36 which the local players will devide. The shware of the Chicago National league team in the world's series receipts is $32,960.03. HIGH SCHOOL BOYS WIN FROM TOMAH

TAKE SATURDAY'S GAME BY SCORE OF 23 TO 5

SPECTACULAR PLAYS MANY

Visitors Put Up a Good Fight, But are no Match for Locals; Seconds and Onalaska Tie

The La Crosse High school football eleven annexed their second victory of the season at the League ball park Saturday by defeating the moleskin wearers from the Tomah High school to the tune of 23 to 5. The game was the best seen on the local gridiron so far this season.

Spectacular plays on both sides made the game lively and interesting to the spectators. Capt. T. Donovan of the Tomah team starred for his team, while Tourtellotte, O. Mueller and the Dahlgren brothers helped in the victory of the La Crosse Highs.

La Crosse Kicks to Tomah.

La Crosse won the toss and chose to defend the west goal and the game was started with Dahlgren kicking off to Tomah on the thirty yard line. After failing to gain at two attempts a quarter back kick was tried but failed and La Crosse took the ball on the Tomah 35 yard line. Tourtellotte started the terrific onslaught by taking five yards over center and J. Dahlgren netted five more over Gutman. Capt Dahlgren then took three on a tackle play and Larson made it first down over Bell. A forward pass to Dickens netted five yards. J. Dahlgren carried the ball to the three yard line on a straight buck and Capt. Dahlgren on a tackle over tackle play went over for the first touchdown after five minutes of play. Dahlgren failed at goal, making the score 5 to 0 in favor of La Crosse Highs.

Tomah Settles Down.

Tomah kicked off to Dahlgren, who advanced it ten yards, Tomah then held for two downs and Dahlgren punted to Donovan, who fumbled, Muleler recovering the ball. A quarter back kick netted ten yards. Byrne took three yards on a end run but a quarter back kick gave Tomah the ball and they took five yards on a forward pass, but lost the ball the next down on a fumble. Tourtellotte took five yards over center, Larson failed at the same place and a quarter back kick to Mueller netted 20 yards. Jack Dahlgren took three over tackle and a quarter back kick lost a yard. A forward pass gave Tomah the ball and they punted after failing in a line buck over Keller. Byrne advanced the ball five yards when a quarter back kick to Dickens gave Tomah the ball. Henry failed over Brindley and Donovan lost a yard on a line buck and punted to the La Crosse twenty yard line. Tourtellotte took three yards over center, O. Mueller netted five yards on an end run and Jack Dahlgren failed, giving Tomah the ball.

Tomah Ties the Score.

Tomah, on a spectacular forward pass to Holmes, who broke away from the entire La Crosse team, went over for Tomah's first and only score of the day. T. Donovan failed at goal and the score was tied, 5 to 5.

On a fake kick by Byrne, Mueller took the ball on the Tomah 40 yard line. A quarter back kick failed and Larson took three yards over center when O. Mueller made a sensational run of thirty yards on a quarter back kick by Byrne to Mueller and brought the ball to Tomah's five yard line.

Dahlgren Makes it Eleven.

Tourtellotte then went over for the second touchdown going over Bell for the goal. Capt. Dahlgren kicked goal making the score eleven to five in La Crosse's favor.

Tomah kicked off to Stavrum, who advanced the ball ten yards, being downed by Reutter, O. Mueller netted eight yards on an end run and Tourtellotte took ten more over center. A forward pass gave Tomah the ball, but Byrne recovered it on the next play. A second trial gave the ball again to Tomah after failing to gain through the line Tomah punted to Tourtellotte on the La Crosse 40 yard line. Dahlgren failed over center and a exchange of punts netted La Crosse ten yards and Bryne in a spectacular run through the crowd netted La Crosse forty yards. After the next play time was called with the ball in La Crosse's possession on the Tomah thirty yard line.

Second Half Opens.

The second half opened with Tomah kicking to La Crosse. La Crosse advanced the ball ten yards, but a fumble gave Tomah the ball and after two attempts at the line it was punted to Tourtellotte, who advanced the ball five yards.

Line bucks by Tourtellotte, Larson and Dahlgren assisted with forward passes landed the ball on the Tomah five yard line and Jack Dahlgren was pushed over the line for a touchdown. Capt. Dahlgren kicked goal making the score 17 to 5.

Place Kick Fails.

Tomah kicked to Byrne, who advanced the ball to the La Crosse 40 yard line. La Crosse made thirty yards with line bucks and trick plays when Tomah held and Capt. Dahlgren negotiated a 35 yard punt to A. Donovan, but Tomah could not gain through the La Crose line and returned by punting to Tourtellotte, who was downed on the Tomah 45 yard line. Byrne took twenty yards on a quarter back run and Tomah held for two downs when Capt. Dahlgren failed at a goal from the field. Tomah punted out from the 35 yard line to Byrne, who advanced it to the 40 yard line. Tourtellotte took ten yards over center. A forward pass to Mueller netted five more and Larson made two over tackle. Stavrum took three yards on a tackle over tackle play and J. Dahlgren made it first down again. Line bucks again brought the ball to the Tomah three yard line and Larson was sent over for the last touchdown. Dahlgren kicked goal and the score was 23 to 5.

Tomah Makes Stand.

Tomah kicked to Byrne and held. Dahlgren punted to Donovan. Tomah started to make up for lost time, but after netting fifteen yards on line plunges had to resort to punting and La Crosse again started their race down the field, but time was called with the ball in La Crosse's possession on the Tomah 40 yard line.

Twenty minute halves were played. The line-up of the teams were as follows:

Tomah H. S.		La Crosse
Wilson	c	Mueller
Gleis	rb	A. Larson
Dunnuman	lh	J. Dahlgren
Holmes	re	Dickens
Drawen	le	Mueller
Bell	rt	Stavrum

Time keepers, O. Weiland and Cody.

Second High 0, Onalaska 0.

The second high school and the Onalaska elevens played a preliminary game which resulted in neither team being able to score. The Onalaska team was much heavier than the local boys, but by superior playing the Highs kept the "business men" from Onalaska from crossing their goal. Davis starred for the High school, being the only ground gainer on the high school team. Punting was resorted to by both sides, Onalaska having a shade the better in the argument.

The line-up for the game was as follows:

Onalaska.		Second High.
Struck	c	Tiedeman
Sjolander	q	Kelley
Lester	lh	Warner
Castorferson	rh	Grimes, capt
Walker	re	Sidensol

THIS RECIPE SAID TO RELIEVE MANY.

Get from any prescription pharmacy the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered by an eminent authority as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

FRESHMEN DOWN SOPHS ON TRACK

OVERWHELM SECOND YEAR MEN AS ATHLETES

ALMOST A HUNDRED POINTS

Sophomores Make 6½, While First Year Students Total 97½—Dohmen Captures Sprints

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 14.—In the anual freshman-sophomore class meet at Camp Randall Saturday the freshmen won the meet by an overwhelming score, the sophomores being able to score only 6½ against 97½ points. While no records were broken, some good time was made in some of the running events. Richards, the crack Chicago runner, who is said to have run the century in 10 flat three times in one year and who has played a good game with the freshman football team this fall, ran the 100 yard dash in .10 3-5, after running a heat in the same time on a poor track. Later he ran the 220 yard dash in 24:01, winning the event in easy style. Dohmen, the Milwaukee West Division High school runner and holder of the interscholastic record in the mile, had things his own way in the half mile and mile runs and took the events in fair time. He ran the mile in 4:50 2-5 and the half mile in 2:14 4-5. In the high jump, three Milwaukee freshmen fought for first place, and the honors finally were divided between Brooks, formerly of East Division, and Rohn, formerly of West Division. Both jumped 5 feet 4 inches. Karl Mann, who competed with Milwaukee academy's team last year, took third with a jump of 5 feet 2 inches. The summaries:

NEW TOWNS IN SOUTH DAKOTA AND NORTH DAKOTA ON THE Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway.

Over 100 miles of track have already been laid on the Pacific Coast extension of this railway in South Dakota and North Dakota. Several new towns have also been opened along this new line. Among them is Lemmon, Butte County, South Dakota, 100 miles west of the Missouri River.

The opening sale of lots in the new town of Hettinger, North Dakota, 25 miles farther west, will be held Thursday, October 24, 1907. This new town will be the county seat of Adams County. All lots will be sold by auction.

The opening sale of lots in the new town of Bowman, North Dakota, 150 miles west of the Missouri River, will be held later. This new town will be the county seat of Bowman County.

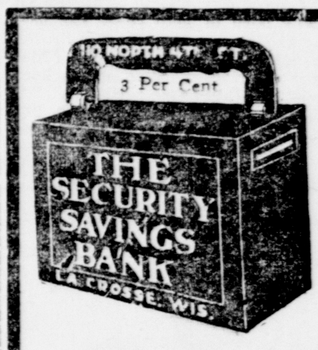

Regular train service between Mobridge, the first station on the extension, and Lemmon, with direct connections from and to Aberdeen, South Dakota, was established October 6.

In each of these towns excellent opportunities are afforded in mercantile or professional work. Why not engage in some business there now, and grow up with these towns?

The territory through which the new line is being built in South Dakota and North Dakota offers exceptional opportunities for those who wish to engage in diversified farming.

NELSON ON IMMIGRATION.

An article on our immigration laws was recently contributed to the Milwaukee Journal by Senator Knute Nelson, of Minnesota, which is of perhaps a shade more interest because Senator Nelson is himself an immigrant. Senator Nelson does not believe in an educational clause in our laws, declaring that the old contention that such a clause would let in the Germans, Scandinavians and other sturdy north of Europe peoples, and would exclude the ignorant, clannish and undersirable people of the south, is a mistake. He attributes the ignorance of the latter to environment and condition, and says they have been proven material for good citizenship.

Commenting on the article of Mr. Nelson, the Journal editorially observes:

"He (Senator Nelson) begins, 'Aside from the question pertaining to Oriental immigration—'

"And he stops there.

"What made him stop there?

"We do not know. He did not tell us. He chose to discuss European immigration; he did not choose to discuss Asiatic immigration.

"It may be that he agrees with most of us that the oriental can never be anything but an undesirable alien.

"It may be that he takes it for granted that there is nothing to discuss in connection with the Asiatics—that the subject does not admit of discussion."

It may be that Senator Nelson felt that, politically, the Oriental aspect of the immigration problem is a dangerous topic. It may also be that he felt that discussion of the subject by a United States senator at this critical moment would be indelicate, if not positively inethical. And it may be that he knew he could not solve it, and preferred not to tackle anything so bothersome.

In concluding his article, however, Senator Nelson offered a suggestion relative to the distribution of European immigration that has a sensible sound. Mentioning the tendency of the immigrants to gather in the big city centers, he said:

"We get those immigrants who come here with the hope of some time being able to secure homes for themselves as farmers or to make their living as mechanics and skilled laborers in our smaller interior towns. I can easily realize how those in the larger cities, where in some localities there is a congestion of immigrants, may look upon this question in a different light than we do.

"I think that one of the most important things that could be accomplished in connection with the solution of the immigration problem would be to make an effort to steer as many as possible of the immigrants away from the large seaboard centers, and out west, and scatter them throughout the country where they would be most needed for the development of the country, and where they would be more easily absorbed and amalgamated.

"This could not be carried on very well by the federal government, because after an immigrant gets here he must take care of himself, but it seems that the different nationalities who have come to this country and who have succeeded in life and are prosperous ought to take hold of this matter and get as many of their newly arrived fellow countrymen as they can to scatter over the country, and especially to go west and secure farms for themselves, and in that way become self-sustaining and independent. This is the most important thing, to my mind, looking to the solution of the immigrant problem."

MEN OF NOTE

William P. Dillingham

Hon. William Paul Dillingham who has been twice sent to the United States senate from Vermont, was born in Waterbury of that state on December 12, 1843. He was educated at the town academy and afterwards studied law, being admitted to the bar in 1867. Senator Dillingham married Miss Ellen Shipman on December 24, 1874. He early entered the political arena and was a member of the state legislature in 1876 and 1884, and served one term in the state senate from 1878 until 1880. He was first elected to the United States senate in 1900. His home is at Montpelier, Vt.

A CASE THAT SHOULD FAIL

Another state has found a basis (the usual basis) for sustaining the legislative wisdom of the 2-cent fare. Ohio reports that a government examination of the facts shows that in that state the revenues of the railroads have been increased by the establishment of the 2-cent price. This evidence is merely cumulative, for the fact has already been demonstrated. However, the railroads that are litigating the legality of the 2-cent fare on the ground that it is confiscatory are apt to find the confidence of their legal advisors waning. If the various states can show that by reducing fares they have actually forced the roads to make money, the one ground depended upon by the corporations to have the courts annul the statutes is lost.

REMEMBER THE PIONEERS

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

It may be that some of the younger generation are inclined to forget the debt they owe to the pioneers, and even to scoff at their influence and ideals. If this is true it is unfortunate, and there is all the more reason for the perpetuation of pioneer associations and the wielding of pioneer influence. To belong to such an organization is to be inscribed on a role of honor. In this new country it is almost a title of nobility. The sons and grandsons of these sturdy men and women should cherish their history and traditions and preserve them from oblivion.

COME IN, WU TING-FANG!

(New York World.)

China hesitates to send Wu Tingfang here again as minister lest he might not be welcome. There is little danger of that. Mr. Wu is one of the most philosophic, interesting and delightful diplomats that have appeared in the United States in recent times. If he had a hand in organizing the late Chinese boycott of American goods, that ought to appeal to the American sense of humor. A Dingley act by some other name is still protecting home industry. Let Mr. Wu return by all means. His bland, oriental humor is needed in a capital which often takes itself far too seriously.

A WITNESS

The lawyer for the defendant was trying to cross-examine a Swede who had been subpoenaed by the other side as a witness in an accident case.

"Now, Anderson, what do you do?" asked the lawyer.

"Sank you, aw am not vara well."

"I didn't ask you how is your health, but what do you do?"

"Oh, yas; aw work."

"We know that, but what kind of work do you do?"

"Puddy hard work; it ees puddy hard work."

"Yes, but do you drive a team or do you work on a railroad, or do you handle a machine or do you work in a factory?"

"Oh, yas; aw wrk in fact'ry."

"Very good. What kind of a factory?"

"It ees a very big fact'ry."

"Your Honor," said the lawyer, addressing the court, "if this keeps on I think we'll have to have an interpreter."

Then he turned to the witness:

"Look here, Anderson, what do you do in that factory—what do you make?" he asked.

"Oh, yas; I un'erstan'; you want to know vat I make 'n fact'ry, eh?"

"Exactly. Now tell us what you make."

"Van dollar an' a half a day."

And the interpreter was called in to earn his salt.—Philadelphia Ledger.

SPOTLIGHTS

The Volunteer Organist.

The author of the new four act drama, "The Volunteer Organist," which is to be the next attraction at the La Crosse theatre tonight, has created a new character which bids fair to rival the immortal Charles Dickens' "Uriah Heap" in "David Copperfield." This unique character, Hubbard Griffin is a sort of hypocritical country personage who endeavors to induce God-fearing people to aid him to further his own dishonorable ends.

Griffin, by lying and plotting, gets the hero—the Rev. Howard Sturgis—into considerable trouble, but in the end receives his just deserts. Griffin is the embodiment of all that is despicable, but nevertheless, the author has made him human.

There are many characters in the flash to be found in rural localities today, and those who live, or have lived in the country will readily recognize him. Apropos of this the play is always entertaining and instructive. "The Volunteer Organist" has been given an elaborate and costly stage setting, and a fine cast, and the drama is sure to play a very successful engagement in La Crosse if the advance sale is any criterion.

"Toyland."

"Toyland," the realm of childhood's happy hours has been made the subject of the latest music play being an adoption by Sam Morris of the old German legend of the home of Toys, Nuremberg. The story was told Mr. Morris on a recent visit to Germany and the possibilities of a music play struck him at once. On his return he proceeded at once to work out the legend in real life, taking as a model for his scenes the old toy shop of Nuremberg, and drawing on the quaint assortment of toymakers and villagers for his characters. His Fritz Heine, Sr., and Jr., are counterparts of one of the oldest and most famous toymakers and his son. While Gretchen bears a striking resemblance to the present belle of Nuremberg. The annual carnival of toys has been taken as an appropriate time for the incidents to take place, giving ample scope for elaborate costume and scenic effect.

"Ma's New Husband."

In "Ma's New Husband" which comes to the La Crosse theatre for a one-night engagement soon, playgoers and music lovers have in store a rare fest of comedy and song. The book is by David Edwin, who has several farce successes to his credit; the music and lyrics by the well known song writer, George Fletcher. This mirthful, musical farce offers light entertainment of a breezy and refined character, and it has been filling theatres to overflowing in all the cities visited this season. The musical numbers run from solos to sextets and vary in theme, from comedy and sentimental to parody and topical. Most of these have proved to be popular song hits.

QUIPS AND CRANKS AND WANTON WILES

The Ways of Women.

A Laplander bold fell in love, I am told,
With a maiden who lived near the Pole.
Their engagement to hallow, he made her a tallow
Dip-candle (and went in the hole.
For there tallow's expensive, and trade not extensive,
Though some say the tallow he stole).
Said he, "Oh, be mine! And this candle is thine!"
And right here the real tale was begun.
She gave one coy look, and the candle she took,
And the man thought his wooing was done.

She sat down on the ice and she ate in a trice
His candle so greasy and yellow and nice.
When he asked for the wick she said, "No, not a lick!
For you gave and I took. That is Love."
Them she took
Off the crumbs as she rose to her feet.
"Glad I met you," she said. "Can I get you your sled?"
And she pointed the way down the street.

Back to Lapland he went, indeed, he was sent;
And he sulkily said as he slid,
"Of all the bold minxes!
She's sharp as the lynxes!
The game's not worth the candle. I'll skid!"
Which he did.

—From the Bohemian.

Brevity Is the Soul.

In a Tennessee court an old colored woman was put on the witness stand to tell what she knew about the annihilation of a hog by a railway locomotive.

Being sworn, she was asked if she had seen the train kill the hog in question.

"Yessah, I seed it."

"Then," said counsel, "tell the court in as few words as possible just how it occurred."

"You' honah," responded the old lady, "I shore kin tell yo' in a few words. It jus' tooted an' tuck him."—Success.

Nine times out of ten the man who preaches that discretion is the better part of valor is a coward.

A woman likes to wash her hair so she can read a love story while it is drying.

FASHION HINTS

(By May Manton.)

5748 Girl's Gymnasium Suit. 8 to 16 years.

GIRL'S GYMNASIUM SUIT 5748

Happily for the rising generation, the full importance of systematic exercise has come to be realized and every school girl includes an exercise suit in her outfit. This one shows several novel and altogether desirable features and allows a choice of long or elbow sleeves. It is made with the comfortable round collar finishing the neck and is finished at the front with a regulation shirt waist box plait. In the illustration it is made of a light weight serge stitched with belding silk and that is perhaps the best material for the purpose, but brilliantine is quite correct and light weight flannel is in use.

The suit is made with the blouse and bloomers. The blouse combines a plain back with tucked fronts and is finished with a band at the waist line. The long sleeves are gathered into straight cuffs but when elbow sleeves are used they are finished with those of the roll-over sort. The comfortably full bloomers are laid in plaits at their upper edges and also are joined to a band, and this band is buttoned onto the one attached to the blouse, so that there is absolutely no danger of parting at the waist line.

The quantity of material required for te medium size (12 years) is 6 yards 27, 3½ yards 44 or 3 yards 52 inches wide.

The pattern 5748 is cut in sizes for girls of 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years of age and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents. (If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage which insures more prompt delivery.)

THE CHURCH IN THE COUNTRY.

(Brooklyn Eagle.)

In the country, however, the church is not merely a place where certain persons gather to hear sermons and sing hymns; it is a social center. The people have their stated meetings for the study of the scriptures—yes, but also for oyster suppers, fairs, sociables, amateur theatricals, spelling bees, old folks' concerts, rummage sales, lectures, classes in sewing and in the making of clothes for the poor. To be sure, the habit of aggregation is ten times more eager in the country than it is in town; for in the former it is occasional, whereas in the latter it is perforce constant. The shop, the street car, the theater, the concert hall, the club, the professional society, the labor union, the political association, are agencies for the gathering of multitudes which do not pertain in farming communities or in thinly peopled districts. Hence the church represents more than its creed and its cause.

PUNCHES—GENERAL AND PARTICULAR.

(New York Tribune.)

To punch or not to punch is one of the most difficult questions in life. There is an etiquette of punching, but it does not always help a man much when the contingency arises and he is forced to decide on the spur of the moment whether he will or not. When the lie is given or certain opprobious epithets are personally applied etiquette calls for a punch. This is supposed to be the irreducible minimum of punching, without the use of which no man can go through life holding his head erect. Beyond this irreducible minimum a man may suit his taste, his disposition and his temper in the use of his fist, within certain limits, without violating proprieties or incrring disapproval as a bully. There are many optional punches, so to speak, on which the world looks with approval besides these two compulsory punches. The punch chivalrous, for instance, the weapon of modern knight errantry, in defense of distressed maids and matrons is of the optional but approved sort.

GOOD TEACHERS SHOULD HAVE GOOD PAY.

(Boston Globe.)

When it is remembered that latter-day conditions have called the teacher into a relation with the pupil which is so closely supplemental to the parental influence, and that the teacher in the public school is often necessarily the chief guide, philosopher and friend to the immigrant child, who will be the future citizen we ought not to begrudge whatever outlay will assure to the schools the best type of instructor.

THE GIANT'S STRENGTH

BY BASIL KING

CHAPTER VIII.

As Winship came down the long room, Paula was able to give a definite outline to the vague portrait of him she had carried away from Monte Carlo. She saw him now, tall, spare, muscular, and, as it were, loosely hung together. He swung himself along with an easy gait in which there was something both careless and sure. "Careless and sure" seemed stamped on his whole person, from his roughly brushed brown hair to the old, russet-colored suit which, as Paula said to herself, he wore "so distinctly like a gentleman." In his ill-dressed, aristocratic gauntness, he seemed to her to recall the race of noble, legendary outlaws—just as a hollow-flanked, gleaming-eyed dog will remind one of a wolf.

'This is Miss Trafford, Roger," Mrs. Winship said, in a voice shaking with emotion. "She has come to ask you to paint her portrait.

"Miss Trafford and I have met already," Winship returned, as he took the hand Paula stretched out to him without rising from her chair.

"For an instant," Paula assented. "I'm glad you haven't forgotten. You see," she added, turning to Marah, who had followed her brother into the room—"you see, we're all friends of Lady Alice Holroyd's"

Marah Winship made no response. Her face had settled into an expression of stony repose. As Winship drew up a small chair beside his mother and opposite their visitor, Marah remained standing at a distance, just where Paula could not see her without turning round.

"Lady Alice is such an enthusiast over your work, Mr. Winship—" Paula hurried on.

"And so generous in singing other people's praises," Winship laughed, not without a flush of conscious pleasure.

"—That I couldn't help hoping you would do a portrait of me, if you're not too busy."

"You are very busy, Roger," Marah warned him, before he had time to reply. "If you're going to have anything ready for the Salon—"

"Perhaps Miss Trafford wouldn't mind my sending this'?"

"Not at all," Paula smiled. "I've figured there already. It isn't so very disagreeable. One is hardly ever recognized."

"What sort of portrait were you thinking of?" Winship inquired.

Paula confessed that her own ideas were vague; she would have to appeal to him for advice. Carolus Duran had painted the bust only; Chartran had done a three-quarters length, standing she would accept Mr. Winship's judgment as to how she should be represented now. She did not say that the picture had little or no interest for her in itself. While he made his suggestions she listened inattentively. He would paint her, he thought, at full length, almost as she sat before him in the high Gothic chair. She should be in some sort of evening dress, black for preference, or diaphanous black over color. She should have a small tiara in her hair, and wear a few fine jewels, possibly emeralds. If she chose emeralds, he would carry out the idea of green by a glimpse—just a glimpse—of a malachite table in the background. There would be green tints, too, in the bit of sky—the sky of a long, late summer twilight—that would be visible through an open window. It would be quite simple—Miss Trafford need not fear the contrary—but it would be the princely simplicity with which she ought to be surrounded.

Paula maintained her air of listening as he grew enthusiastic over his conceptions, but in reality she was watching his play of countenance. She thought she had never seen—not even in her father—a face in which there was greater strength of will. In the eyes, soft and hazel as they were, there was a penetration not less keen than in Paul Trafford's own; while the mouth under the brown mustache seemed to her both sensitive and inexorable. She was not sure that she liked it. It was too much like the mouth of a man whom neither pity nor passion would turn from what he had set his mind on. While he was talking of colors and poses, she caught herself wondering if he could possibly be as unyielding as his expression seemed to say.

Having decided on the general character the portrait was to take, they discussed the question of sittings. Paula admitted the difficulty of giving them in her own house, and her willingness to come to his.

"That will suit me admirably," Winship agreed, "if it isn't giving you too much trouble. This is my only studio, I regret to say; but it has the advantage that my mother is always here, and generally my sister."

Paula turned round towards Marah with a conciliatory smile.

"That will be charming. I know Miss Winship is an artist, too. Perhaps we shall have the benefit of her criticism and advice."

But Marah stood unresponsive, gazing blankly at the opposite wall. After waiting a second for some recognition of her words, Paula turned again towards Winship. If she felt hurt, she was too sure of her own good intentions to be otherwise than self-possessed.

"And now, Mr. Winship," she said gently, "there's one other question. I'm business woman enough to know that there must be no misunderstanding about terms."

Winship bowed.

"Certainly. I will tell you frankly how the matter stands with me. I've just finished a portrait for which I've had four thousand francs; for the next one I painted I meant to ask five."

"I will give you fifty thousand," Paula said, quietly.

There was a moment's hush, as if the hearers were endeavoring to comprehend.

"I don't think you understand me, Miss Trafford," Winship said at last, speaking deliberately. "I said five thousand—"

"And I said fifty," Paula interrupted.

"You're very kind," Winship said, flashing one of his careless smiles at her, "but I'm afraid I must stand by my price."

"There's no question of standing by anything," Paula returned. "A portrait hasn't a fixed and unchanging value like—like a postage-stamp."

"The money value of any work of art, a book, a picture, a statue, or whatever it be," Winship explained, "can be measured only by the reputation of its author. A poor bit of work by a well-known man is worth more, from a financial point of view, than a good bit of work by a man who makes only a small appeal to the public; and so—"

"I don't care anything about that," Paula interrupted again.

"No; but I do," Winship rejoined. "I'm obliged to look at things just as they are. My portrait of you might be as good as Carolus Duran's, and yet you couldn't hang it with the same pride on your walls, or take the same glory in it among your friends."

"But that isn't what I want to do." Paula said, unguardedly.

"Then what do you want to do?" he asked, leaning forward and looking at her straight in the eyes.

Paula was not blind to the directness of the question, and she thought it rather tactless. It would have been so much more delicate on his part to have let her fix the price without discussion! His smile, too, annoyed her—that is, it would have annoyed her if it had not fascinated her by its suggestion of ease and power. He looked at her entirely without awe, as if he caught no glimmer of the throne of gold on which other people seated her. It was not exactly disagreeable, she thought; it was only disconcerting.

OF HUMAN INTEREST

If there is one place more than another in which "a soft answer turneth away wrath" and where a soft answer is needed it is over the telephone, where the (many times) unoffending centrals get all kinds and conditions of ire let loose upon them. So many folks are so snappy and needlessly hateful to centrals that the innocent and those that don't mean to be hasty, have to suffer equally with the mean ones.

It's all very well to blame the young lady at the other end of the wire every time you don't get lightning like service, but some times you know it may be something wrong with the line and it only makes things unpleasant all around to fly off the handle.

Some people seem to think that telephone girls are the prime objects on which to vent their spleen when things go wrong in office, home or store.

I heard a young man call up the other day and in response to number, say "277-C and be quick about it too," in a very gruff insulting tone. Such things hurt even a hardened central's feelings.

I don't think telephone girls are supremely patient at all times, and they don't set up as models for Moses, but at the same time I think they have just a little more to contend with than most any other employe that serves the public.

The school teacher has her pupils, the office man his clients, the newspaper man his subscribers, the clerks their customers, but the telephone employes have every kind of an individual to contend with a thousand times a day, a heterogeneous mass of dispositions, and human nature is such that things cannot always go smoothly; and it certainly isn't in every instance the fault of the operator.

I was at a friends house the other day when she was doing some telephoning to find out an unknown quantity about a house number. "I am sorry to trouble you so much central," she said as she finished. "Oh, that is alright Mrs. ———" rejoined the operator calling her by name. "You are always so nice to us girls that we are glad to do something for you."

"I am so nice to you," said the astonished woman. "I never knew it if I was." "Oh well, but we always know who are nice to us and who are not and you are very welcome," said the girl—and so here is food for thought. If centrals have got us "spotted" it behooves us to mend our ways.

And then this—did you ever notice if anything is the matter and you confide your troubles to central, how quick she is to try and help you and how loyally she will stand by you?

I have, and I venture to say that when we are polite and forbearing with the operators we get paid in our own coin and vice versa, for they really have feelings, just like we do.

BACK TO CANAL DAYS

(Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

An index of the intense interest which the business world is taking in the utilization of the water ways of the country is to be found in the multiplicity of projects that are under way for the enlargement of old canal routes, of which the Erie, upon which the state of New York is spending $160,000,000, is an example; for the connection of separated water systems, as, for instance, the plan for the construction of a canal that will bring the freight of the great lakes to Pittsburg and the waters of the Ohio; or for such national and strategic undertakings as the construction of inland water ways parallel with the Atlantic coast from Massachusetts to the Carolinas and below.

CAR SHORTAGE IS SERIOUS PROBLEM

MUCH GRAIN REMAINS TO BE MOVED

COAL IS SHIPPED EARLIER

Disposal of the Fuel Situation May Help the Grain Men Some in the Next Few Weeks

The shortage of cars is a subject that has been worrying northwest shippers as well as local men who receive large shipments of grain. Despite the fact that the railroads are in a much better condition to handle the traffic than they were last year, yet another shortage such as was had last fall is feared. One thing that will undoubtedly help the grain shippers this year is the fact that the coal dealers are deceiving their shipments much earlier. Last year, owing to the large amount of grain that was being shipped the coal men did not receive their shipments until winter had a good start. This year, however, they took the necessary precautions and it is all being shipped now As soon as the cars are unloaded it will increase the supply for grain.

RANDOLPH WANTS A NEW DEPOT

There were 559 tickets sold from Randolph to the Beaver Dam fair last week. During the month of September 794 tickets were sold by Agent Porter, not including tickets to the Dodge county fair. And still the poor, down-trodden railroad company cannot afford (?) to build us a new depot. We doubt if these is another town of equal size anywhere in the state on the C., M. & St. P. Ry., that does as much railroad business, both passenger and freight, the year around, as Randolph. And still we have to put up with accommodations that are inadequate, out of date and not in keeping with the progress and enterprise of our town. The railroad company is having a new cement platform put in around the depot. Louis Achterberg has the contract for doing the job. The new platform and the old barn of a depot will make a pretty combination—nit. —Randolph Advance.

NO SIGNAL TO MEAN GO AHEAD

La Crosse railway men are much intersted in the announcement that the United States government has taken up the subject of railway signal lights, and within the next few weeks every railway in the country will be ordered to adopt a new system of signals.

The new signals that the government has decided to adopt make quite a change from the signals that have been in general use throughout the country for years. The white lights on most roads mean "go ahead," but under the new system it will mean "stop and investigate."

The red lights will mean "danger —stop" the same as they do in the present system.

It is the argument put up by the government that an engineer should be given no signals whatever if the track is clear and any that are given him should mean something else than a clear track.

REV. TURNER AND WIFE LEAVE TODAY

The Rev. W. J. Turner and wife left on the noon train today for Merrill, Wis., where Mr. Turner has accepted a call from the Presbyterian church. Mr. Turner preached his farewell sermon Sunday.

Mr. Turner has been pastor at the North Presbyterian church for a number of years and in that time has accumulated a long list of friends who regret his leaving his North Side congregation.

Present Umbrella.

Six well known North side youths, not members of Rev. Turner's church, presented him with a handsome, gold mounted umbrella, as a token of their good will and warm friendship. More than usual significance is attracted to the act by the mere fact that they were not members of Rev. Turner's congregation and the gift was merely a token of their apprecation of the pastor as a man.

Dreams of the Healthy.

There has been much discussion as to whether one dreams only on falling to sleep and during the act of waking up, or whether dreams take place at any time during sleep. While not definitely determined as yet, the evidence seems to be rather in favor of the view that one may dream at any time during the night or the whole night through. Dreaming is common to perfectly healthy persons, and in itself is no evidence of disorder.—Harper's Magazine.

Mount McKinley.

In mountain climbing the world over the climber usually arrives fresh and unfatigued at the base of the peak he wishes to storm and, as a rule, begins his ascent at a high altitude. On Mount McKinley, as described by a writer in Outing, it is the opposite. There are twenty-five miles of rugged foothills and glaciers to be crossed—with heavy packs—before the base of the mountain is reached, and then the climber is confronted by 18,000 feet of rock and ice.

Compliment.

ANTI-SALOONIST PREDICTS SUCCESS

REV. HUMPHRY ADDRRESSES NORTH SIDE PEOPLE

TALK AT CALEDONIA M. E.

Services in Evening are Held in Conjunction With Farewell to Rev. Mr. Turner.

State superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, U. S. Humphrey, of Milwaukee, addressed the congregation of the Caledonia Street M. E. church yesterday morning. Mr. Humphrey's address which was very interesting throughout, dwelt chiefly on what had been done by the league in the past and on the future that it had especially in Wisconsin. He showed the good that had already been accomplished and going into the future showed the listeners the great benefit that could be derived from the organization if the work was kept up as earnestly as it has been in the past.

In the evening the congregation of the Mehtodist church joined in the farewell services that were being held by the Rev. W. J. Turner at the North Presbyterian church.

Rev. A. L. Woods, the pastor of the Caledonia street church was ill yesterday and was unable to attend the services. He is somewhatx better today although he is still confined to his bed.

An official board meeting of the ..orth side Methodist church is to be held at the church this evening.

Next Sunday there is to be a Sunday school rally at the church.

A SCRAP OF PAPER.

It Was the Means of Bringing a Murderer to Justice.

Scraps of paper have on several occasions been the means of throwing a light on some of the greatest criminal mysteries of modern times. Had it not been for the minutest scrap of tissue paper it is quite possible that the notorious Franz Muller would have remained a free man to the end of his days.

After foully murdering a Mr. Briggs in a railway carriage on the North London line Muller made off with his victim's hat. When caught several months later a top hat declared to be Mr. Briggs' was found in his possession. Its shape, however, had been considerably altered, and Muller insisted that the hat had been bought by himself.

Was it Mr. Briggs' hat?

"If it is Mr. Briggs' hat," said the hatter who supplied him, "you may find a piece of tissue paper in the lining. Mr. Briggs' hat was too large for him, so I put the paper in to make it fit."

When the lining was turned down a scrap of paper which had adhered to the leather was discovered. Muller had a bigger head than Mr. Briggs and had therefore resolved to take the paper out. He left that little bit, however, sufficient to establish the identity of the hat beyond all question as that Mr. Briggs was wearing when he was murdered.

This is only one instance among many where bits of paper have solved great mysteries.—London Answers.

ART OF THE ETRUSCANS.

Mysterious People Who Left Traces of a Remarkable Civilization.

Why did the Etruscans devote their whole lives to the incessant making of pottery until it accumulated in such quantities that they were compelled to bury it in order to keep room for themselves in their streets and houses?

Then, again, there is the mystery of the Etruscan inscriptions. These inscriptions are fairly numerous, but hitherto they have proved to be utterly undecipherable. The Etruscan is the only dead language that has defied investigation. Considered as a language, nothing could seem more improbable than the hieroglyphics of the Egyptians, but Egyptologists can read them with such ease that almost any given series of hieroglyphics can be read in three or four ways by an equal number of rival Egyptologists. Any language more utterly impossible at first glance than the Assyrian arrow-headed language could not well be imagined, but there are many learned men who can read, write and speak arrowhead with facility. And yet no man can make the least sense of the writings left by the Etruscans, although they are written in Roman characters.

All that we know of the Etruscans seems unreasonable and preposterous. Naturally this makes them fascinating to every one who delights in mystery and the solution of puzzles.—Putnam's Magazine.

RUSHFORD PLAYS HARMONY HARD

RUSHFORD, Minn Oct. 14.—(Special.)—With benumbed fingers and faces the Rushford High school Athletes put a coat of white-wash on Harmony, which will be hard to remove. The basket-ball team from that town was defeated by a score of 44 to 0, while the Rushford foot ball aggregation held the Harmony squad to a socre of 0 to 0.

The basket ball game was a one-sided affair as it was the first game played away from home by the Harmony girls. The visitors were outplayed at every point in the first place on account of the light weight of the Harmony girls and in the second place the visitors were disheartened at the start. The regular 20 minute halves were played. The line-up was as follows:

Harmony.		Rushford.
K. Johnson	c	L. Wright
E. Sanderson	1st g.	B. Roberton
S. Harsted	2nd g.	T. Anderson
S. Linse	1st f.	R. Kierland
G. Stenvick	2nd f.	S. Layne

Sugs—G., Wolstead; L. Engh, S. Laugan.

Umpire—Miss M. Jones.

Referee—Miss B. Applebee.

The football game began at 4:30. Harmony won the toss, taking the east goal and the ball. Putnam kicked off to the Harmony 20 yard line. Harmony advanced the ball about five yards. By successive plays around the ends Harmony advanced the ball to Rushford's 20 yard line when the defenders took a brace and held them for downs. Larson of Rushford punted to Harmony's 30 yard line and Harmony after advancing the ball to their 50 yard line was held for downs. When time was up the ball was on Harmony's 40 yard line. Score 0 to 0.

Second Half.

Harmony's kickoff. Wolsted kicked to Rushford's 30 yard line and Sundby advanced the ball five yards. On Harmony's 50 yard line the visitors were penalized five yards for foul tackle. Rushford advanced to the forty yard line when Harmony was again penalized five yards. Twenty-five yards from the visitors goal Rushford was given five more yards on account of an offside play of the opponents. Harmony braced and held Rushford for downs. CUBAN ANNEXATION.

(Washington (D.C.) Star.)

Annexation may come in time. Many Cubans desire it, and many Americans think both countries would benefit. But to be creditable and thoroughly workable it must come in the natural order of things. Should it come as the result of a conspiracy of American speculators, operating in disregard of this government's duty and promises in the premises, and with only their wallets in mind, it would be certain to breed no end of trouble.

A man who owns a fine coffee plantation in Jamaica said: "Four years ago I discovered that coffee was ruining my health, and I quit and have been using Postum ever since."

Experience taught this man that he could not drink his own high-grade coffee. Its active drug—caffeine—irritates the nervous system, interferes with digestion, and trouble is sure to follow.

Some folks may take the hint and change to Postum.

It is absolutely free from drugs, and when well made, that is, boiled 15 minutes, it has a delicious taste similar to the mild, high-grade Javas, with the natural vital food elements of the field grains that repair the damage done by coffee. "There's a Reason." Read that "little health classic," "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

The ladies of Christ church will hold a rummage sale Friday and Saturday of this week in the Rehfus building on South Fourth street.

Dr. Riley has also spoken in the city and has been listened to with much pleasure. Hon. H. R. OPENING EL KSTAG IS A BIG SUCCESS

The first Elk Stag of the season at the Elks' club Saturday evening was one of the most successful entertainments given by the Elks in recent years, and was attended by a crowd which filled the club rooms.

The club was artiscally decorated with palms, ferns, trailing vines and cut flowers, big jars and cut glass vases of carnations and other flowers being distributed in the various rooms.

Among the attractions were violin solos by Prof. E. Dirks, piano selections by Mr. Walter Goetzinger, the well known blind pianist, and vocal solos by Mr. B. H. Guess.

The principal attraction of the evening was a boxing exhibition in the main auditorium between two clever artists in this line.

An excellent lunch was served at midnight.

There were many out-of-town Elks present including a delegation from the Winona lodge.

So successful was the affair that the committee in charge is preparing to give another social entertainment within a couple of weeks.

Arrangements are already being made for the annual Thanksgiving turkey raffle and banquet, which is always an interesting event in Elkdom.

The Elks give an informal dancing party Friday evening of this week, and the decorations provided for Saturday night's stag party will probably be left in place for the dance.

PRESBYTERIAN FINISH SYNOD

The annual meeting of the synod of Wisconsin Presbyterian church which closed their meeting at Milwaukee Friday, was one of the most successful meetings ever held. Rev. Dr. G. M. Colville of Racine was elected as a successor of the late Rev. M. Humphrey of Ashland to the place of moderator. The meeting for 1908 was given to Marinette, Wis.

The Sabbath school with connection to the synod was thoroughly discussed and was finally referred to a committee of which Rev. Dr. Thomas of this city was elected chairman. He will be assisted by Rev. J. B. Brown of Milwaukee and E. A. Cutler of Madison and two elders of the church, who will thoroughly investigate the question and report at the meeting at Marinette next year. Besides the meeting of the synod the ladies of the church met. In all there were about 300 attending the convention. Home missions were taken up at the meeting, and several papers were read on the work that has been accomplished through that branch in the states.

Among the La Crosse delegates who attended the convention are the following: Mr. W. E. Walker, Dr. W. D. Thomas, Rev. S. L. McKee of West Salem, Mrs Rev. J. K. Fowler and Mrs. W. E. Walker.

REV. N. C. MOLLER ASSAILS FAKERS OF "FAITH HEALING"

ponderously and widely manifests the influence of evil in humanity, it is above all in the fact of that in Christian history we find every advance of highest truth oposed by ignorance and unbelief. Even today, in these so-called enlightened days, there is an unguarded credulity that gives every fad and fancy a welcome. Wicked and blasphemous nonsense is even now enlisting the suport of many people in America. There are thousands whose high secular education seems unable to save them from mental feebleness and instability when it comes to the most vital matters of human affairs, viz: the divine science of Faith and the blessed science of medicine.

We are speaking in the name of the consensus of the belief of the Christian scholars and evangelists of all the Christian centuries when we arrestr that the Christ method of healing, His incomprehensible power over disease was not the manifestation of the ways and means of overcoming disease and suffering, that would ultimately be revealed, to the overthrow of all the principles and methods of medical science any more than Christ's walking on the water and His enabling St. Peter to have the Faith to walk with Him was a sign that some day there were to be initiated into the secret, who would be able to do the same.

The Saxiour's works of mercy were the manifestation of His compassionate love for all amnkind and was a part of the great plan of man's redemption to an everlasting life of health and happiness in the true environment of human nature in the better and brighter world entered through the grave and gate of death. Christ did not give His followers in the Apostolic age spiritual power for the sake of physical healing, but enabled them to make physical healing the parable and sign of spiritual purposes that were intended to affect the whole man and reach beyond the effects to be seen and realized in this mortal life. The great fallicy in all healing charlatanries is in looking upon the Christ as above all a minister to the body and the Christ religion as first and foremost a therapeutic system, as if the chief end of man were to forget his sins in trying to cure his neuralgia or rheumatism and that his bodily comfort for a few brief years was far more important than the welfare of his whole human nature and the life of unending aeons.

When we read in St. Matthew and St. Luke the words of our Lord, "They who are sick need a physician," we know that He meant this to be true for all time. Sin, disease and death are the great abiding facts in human life to the end of the world. Our Lord's suffering must have been real suffering. His death a real death, or Divine love fails and deceives in what the human heart knows to be the highest revelation of the Divine nature.

St. Luke, the "beloved physician," did not hold his degree or title by the courtesy of St. Paul's affectionate regard, or because of any miraculous power over disease he may have had. St. Luke was no mere "medicine man" or faith healer in the modern interpretation ofthese words; he did not depend on psychological power to give him success among a simple and superstitious people. Dr. Hobart of Trinity college, Dublin, seems to prove very clearly, not only that St. Luke uses medical terms that the other evangelists do not use, but that his vocabulary is that of one who had received a medical education and that he had read and studied the standard medical works of his day.

St. Luke is a physician, not merely as a gentile heathen, but after his conversion he still receives the title of a doctor of medicine in the modern acceptation of the term, that although St. Luke must have had powers, supernatural powers, to heal even as his Saviour healed, yet he continued to cherish the facts of the science in which he had been trained and used the nomenclature of that science in his Divinely inspired writings and was known among the early Christians as a doctor of that science.

We feel justified in saying that St. Luke would never have been converted if the prejudice of his profession had hindered his consideration of the healing without medicine, but he still kept his sanity, still honored his profession and therefore most honored his God by overcoming any temptation to steal the name of Christ or play on the superstitions of man's religious nature and pervert the supernatural gifts of his Master from there high and holy purpose to his personal gain and glory.

It must be easy for a physician nowadays to get behind the times and under the pressure of the demands of his practice to neglect his reading. Without attempting to go beyond thelimitations of the point of view of one not of teh profession, I believe taht all will agree with me that if the members f the community were more conscientious about paying their doctor's bills and would feel their services worthy of a just compensation, that some physicians would be able to live more comfortably on a smaller practice with more time for study and many more physicians would be stimulated to harder study and higher ambitions by a larger practice.

It is a god thing for each and every family to have a beloved physician. How many families have such a friend, tried and trusted and skillful and beloved. What a blessed work these men are doing in every community in Christendom. There are bad men among them as there aer bad men among the clergy and in teh law and in politics, but there is no doubt that there are many men in the medical profession who are beloved and worthy ofthe respect and confidence of their patients and a great number who are dong some good in spite of radical defects of character and the habits of life that prevent the performance of religious duties and the benefit of religious ideals.

Go to China or India or Africa and behold the condition of the people and you will shrink with horror from the sights and sounds of helpless misery and flee from the dangers and desolations of the resistless sweep of some dreadful plague that gathers millions in its harvest of death. These lands are overrun with healing fakirs of all descriptions, many of whom work on the same principles that are familiar tokens of similar classes in this country.

But in these lands the sign of the cross is over the hospital and the nurses' work with its sign upon their arm, and with the doctors, they are inspired with the love of Christ and bless those who come to them with the means that is known to the noble science of medicine.

In far Japan it was the influence of the Christian nations that created the medical corps for the army of the heathen, it was the red cross that was the sign of mercy and relief to the suffering and the dying on many a bloody battlefield.

In all Christian missions the physician and the nurse of the scientific schools of medicine have their part in the spreading of the power and glory of Christ's kingdom. With St. Luke they are still the companions of the Christian apostles and evangelists, and to them they are still the physicians beloved by the ministers of Christ who are the necessary complement to faith and prayer.

This sermon is not an argument, it is an appeal to reason and common sense of Christian people to consider teh duty they owe to the science of medicine and its essential union with the progress of the Divine kingdom, and to beware of the delusions of the times and to pray God to keep them free from all the enticements of anti-Christian cults and anti-Christian philosophies that sem able so often "to deceive even the elect."

TEACHERS AT MILWAUKEE—The annual meeting of the Wisconsin Teacher's association will be held from the 7th to the 9th of November at Milwaukee.

ABOLISH TUTORING—Tutoring and cramming for examination without going through the regular recitations at the La Crosse High school will be abolished after the present semester. Prof. Benezet has set a rule to the teachers to the effect that after February the students must be at all recitations to take examinations.

HUNTERS RETURN — Alderman Harry Palmer and Attorney Frank E. Withrow have returned last evening from points in Iowa, where they have been for the past few days on one of the most successful hunting expeditions of the season. Besides about 25 ducks, as many mud hens, 'coons, squirrels, and the smaller game, they succeeding in bagging a fine blue Crane measuring from five to six feet from its wing tips. After exhibiting their game to their friends and getting them interested in hunting they absolutely refuse to divulge their hunting territory.

MOVEMENT ON RIVER — The traffic of boats on the river for the past few days has been exceptionally light. Few boats are now plying the river, the majority having gone into winter quarters. The steamer La Crosse has gone into winter quarters at Wabasha, having discontinued the packet business for the season.

Some few are so lucky as to be able to do things without knowing how.

Finally I would ask you to think of the supreme test that will alone unfailingly expose the true power and usefulness and the relations to the truth of God of the followers of the science of medicine and surgery on the one hand and the unscientific religious and irreligious healers on the otner. Let these jugglers with psychological power and partial truths concerning physical laws go to the plague stricken fields of India—go to the heathen lands and compete with other unscientific healers—le them go to the bloody battlefields and listen to the groans of tortured humanity and try their skill in the great tented hospitals.

Are you as Christian people not confident that this test between the physicians who have already brought great blessings and shown wonderful skill and success in such supreme tests, and the efforts of unscientific religious or irreligous healers will offer as great a contrast as the result of the competition of Elijah and the priests of Baal on Mt. Carmel?

NOTABLE GATHERING AT THE HOTEL STODDARD

SPEAKERS URGE WELL DOING

Unity, Faith and Patriotism Are Among the Cardinal Virtues Which Must Prevail

About 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening the guests began to arrive at the Hotel Stoddard where they were ushered to the reception rooms on the first floor, previous to the Landing Day dinner, and an elaborate program of instrumental music and toasts given by the local council, Knights of Columbus, No. 839, in commemoration of the 415th anniversary of the landing of Christopher Columbus upon the shores of this continent.

The members of the council, ladies, and invited guests numbering about two hundred, marched from the reception rooms down to the spacious dining room, headed by a numbre of the most prominent guests about 8:30, to the music of a beautiful march, "Great Divide," (Holzman), rendered by Kreutz's orchestra. After a prayer offered by Rev. Ambrose Murphy the concourse was seated at the request of Toastmaster Dr. Edward Evans, to partake of the excellent dinner afforded by Landlord Smith.

Elaborate Program.

Appropriate musical selections were interspersed with the courses by the Kreutz orchestra, and by Prof. Jacob Reuter, the violinist, who rendered with marvelous beauty and ease of execution Hungarian airs, accompanied upon the piano by Chas.

SORROW TRAILS IN DEAD HOPE'S WAKE TO TIGER FUNERAL

The tragedy that overwhelms Detroit was reflected here today in a mournful procession that must have invited again the scourge of President against nature fakers, for in it there rode triumphant the Teddy Cub of Chicago, while stretched beneath in a wicker casket lay the sorrowful form of the slain and disgraced Tiger.

And there was a mourner, too. B. H. Ross constituted the arched-necked hearse team, while behind the equipage, cast in a gloomy mood, strode Lester Keene. There should have been other mourners, but Bob Shaw was indisposed, wrapped in tearful thoughts, and Claude Maurer, dropping now and then a tear, admitted that he was unequal to the task of carrying the luggage of his great sorrow and his great self through the dirge-timed procession. Charley Deal wept in the chicken gravy, and thought how he would like to return to that dear Spokane to bury his woes in the wilds of the untamed west.

What Lester lost was some, and the others lost some, too. But the money didn't matter, it was the other bet. There was a cub in the Fay Lewis store, a despised and neglected Cub. There was also a Tiger, bright in anticipation of victory. And there was a wicker chariot, four hands high. And when the cheerful Ross had drawn out the wicker with the erstwhile insulted, but now triumphant Cub, pennant in hand, astride the seat, and the vanquished and prostrated Tiger lying corpse-like in the box, the muffled tread of the funeral party, in payment of this bitter bet, wended past Webb's barbershop to give that disconsolate member of the Down-and-outers a last look at his perished love, and with measured beat and drooping heads droned to the brink of the harbor where, when the final "pax vobiscum" had fallen from the lips of a ministering spirit, a vanished hope and a dead, dead Tiger went splashing to eternal rest in the turbulent waters of the Mississippi.

TEMPORARY SUCCESSOR.

Pending the appointment of a successor to Chief H. H. Byrne, Captain John Parks will be acting chief. It was stated today by one of authority that there would be no temporary appointment.

A JEWELRY STORE THAT'S DIFFERENT

This is not the usual sort of jewelry store. Not that any mystery surrounds it. It is a specialty jewelry store. It is the smallest in the city when measured in cubic feet, but is the originator and only thorough exponent of a high quality, low price policy devoted to the sale of diamonds, watches, jewelry and allied lines.
It is a thoroughly dependable, safe and satisfactory store to deal with—a "different store."

SMALL, ADVOCATING BREAK, IS DEPOSED BY OPERATORS WHO CLAMOR FOR FINISH FIGHT

was dismissed. Another was discharged by a railroad, and scores of these cases are said to exist.

Chicago Men Veto Peace Plan.

The surrender of President Small of the striking telegraphers and his recommendation that the fight on the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies be called off met with a derisive reception yetserday in the ranks of the Chicago union.

At a meeting of 700 members of the local union in Uhlich's hall, on North Clark and Michigan streets, in the afternoon, it dwas resolve unanimously to continue the strike. The resignation of Small was demanded and, failng this, his impeachment on a charge of treason to the union was recommended.

As a finale to the jeering speeches and cat-calls, and other tumult that distinguished the meeting, the strikers paraded from the hall to the Western Union and Postal buildings where they indulged in demonstrations indicating their scorn of the strike breakers who were at work at the keys. Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler was obliged to break up the street gathering.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—President Small gave up his room in the Astor house at 5 o'clock this morning and disappeared unescorted. The local officials charge Small held back the insurance fund of $15,000 from the relief.

Operators Stay Out.

Small was scored without mercy yesterday afternoon at a massmeeting of the Commercial Telegraphers' union for recommending a vote on the question of declaring the strike off, and was hooted, jeered, and greeted with shouts of derision and contemptuous epithets when he attempted to defend himself.

Chief Strategist Russell, Percy Thomas, and others who opposed Small were received with uproarious cheers when they denounced him and charged him with incompetency, with lack of frankness, with being a recreant to the cause of the telegraphers, and with being grossly indifferent to the outcome of the strike.

He was also charged with being responsible for starting the tsrike movement which he now sought to repudiate by ordering a strike in San Francisco after the issuance of the Neill-Clowry letter in defiance of the orders of the general executive board of the union.

Treachery Charge Is Hurled

Small was followed by Percy Thomas, who at once began an attack on Small, which was received with shouts of applause and approval. He said taht i nhis closing remarks Small said there were no funds to speak of.

"This does not fit in well," he said, "with his statement some time ago inwhich he talked of raising a fund of $2,000,000. If I had a case in which I wanter to get an attorney and represented the telegraph companies I would certainly get Small." (Cheers and shouts of derision.)

Western Union Officials Talks

When Supt. Brooks of the Western Union company was told of the result of the meeting tonight he said:

"The strikers may call the strike off or not, we will never arbitrate with them no matter how long they stay out. What they do now does not concern us."

FAMILY DIES WHEN HOME BURNS

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 14—Six members of the family of Solomon Frank, a glove cutter, the father and five daughters, were suffocated by smoke when their home was destroyed by fire. The daughters were Sarah, 21; Doa, 19; Rosa, 17; Minnie, 12, and Mary, 10.

The father lost his life in endeavoring to save his children, following the discovery of the flames by the mother, who with two small sons made her escape.

The oldest daughter was to have become a bride early in December, and last night there was a social at the home of the family in celebration of the approaching nuptials.

FIFTY SEEK A HUBBY BY "AD"

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Women affinity seekers made a sort out of N. H. Matthews' flat, 1305 North Halsted street, yesterday. Cupid awoke to the realization, if he didn't already know it, that "advertisng pays."

After a strenuous day's work receiving callers and looking up a few candidates living in the immediate vicinity of his home, Mr. Matthews looked cheerful at night. He believed there was hope—even for a man with four small children.

In a modest sort of way Mr. Matthews said he objected seriously to the amount of notoriety that has followed the appearance of his "Wife Wanted" sign in the window of his flat, but acknowledged that on account of it he has a "much larger variety to choose from." He said he couldn't estimate the exact number of women who called.

GRAND OPENING IS A GREAT SUCCESS

LA CROSSE HAT & HABERDASHERY IN NEW QUARTERS

HAVE BUILT LARGE CLIENTELE

Increased Business Caused Them to Outgrow Old and Seek New Quarters

The grand opening of the La Crosse Hat and Haberdashery, Saturday evening, in their magnificent new quarters in the Burkhart and Frey building at 526 Main street, was enthused with activity and interest from the time the doors were opened to the hustling throng until it finally dwindled away at a late hour. Everyone present received as a gift a beautiful carnation, of which several hundreds were carried away. The affair was a grand success, to which the fame of "The La Crosse Hat, Good as Gold," contributed.

The firm began business under the name of the "La Crosse Hat Works" upon a small scale June 5th, 1905, across the street from their new quarters, at 515 Main street, under the management of A. A. Graef who is still at the head of the firm.

Outgrow Their Quarters.

Their quality of manufactured hats was at once recognized as second to none, and gradually, their business has increased until its need of space and facilities forced it to seek larger quarters in the new and elaborate building where the grand opening was held Saturday night.

They have now added a complete line of the "up-to-the-minute" kind of haberdashery, carrying the renowned Wilson Bros. line of furnishing goods comprising the latest in fancy and common shirts, linens, neckwear, hosiery, underwear, gloves, etc. To the expensive line shown in their present elaborate display of goods they will soon make a large addition, making one of the most complete equipments in the city.

Facilities Greatly Increased.

Their hat department is now replete in every way, and with increased facilities for manufacturing hats, in the new building, which has been erected, at the rear of the main store and equipped with the most up-to-date machinery obtainable, they expect to keep up with the growing demand for their line and supply their immense trade with new, manufactured and renovated hats, with promptness and reliability.

Careful Advertisers.

They manufacture every style of hat known, stiff and soft, and receive blocks for new styles as soon as they are on the market.

At the opening congratulations were showered upon the firm, and the public showed its appreciation of the hard work, careful advertising methods, and conscientious effort that have made their business a splendid success and a public convenience.

LUEDKE FINED FOR ASSAULT

A dun for a bill of 90 cents, due at the bar, started a fracas in the saloon of Charles Selonke, 1200 South Eleventh street, which culminated in Selonke receiving a body blow from Adolph Luedke, 1127 South Eleventh, and being chased across the street, and shoved or klocked a pane of glass.

The fight occurred on Oct. 4, when Selonke asked Luedke for the payment of the bar bill. This morning Selonke landed the body blow in county court, when Luedke was found guilty of assault and battery by a jury, and fined $10 and costs, $28, or ten days in jail.

Luedke gave notice of an appeal, but has failed to file the bond.

FINISHES REPORTS ON HEATING PLANT

Superintendent J. T. Day who installed the heating apparatus in the new La Crosse high school and who has for some time had charge of the inspection work at the 10th district school, was at the office of the board of public works today making his final reports.

Mr. Day said this afternoon that the work had now been entirely completed with the exception of the installation of a few dampers.

The work is entirely satisfactory, he says, and will also prove economical.

BRINGS IN FIRST LOAD OF CORN

William Fredrick, a farmer living northeast of the city on the Hilldred farm, has the honor of bringing the first load of new corn to the local market. The corn was considered exceptionally good and brought 50 cents per bushel. Mr. Fredrick said that the crop was the best in many years.

HAY DROPS TWO DOLLARS TODAY

Hay was plentiful on the local market today there being more farmers in the city with hay than any other time this year and as a result the price was forced down $2 and the farmers were glad to accept $14 and $15 per ton for their crop.

HAS STRINGS ON MANY FACTORIES

CAR WORKS, AUTO FACTORY AND STEEL PLANT

ALL WOULD LOCATE IN CITY

Secretary Bentley Leaves on Trip of Investigation—Egg Carton Machinery Ready.

By November first it is expected that the La Crosse Egg Carton plant will be established in La Crosse.

Secretary A. A. Bentley of the La Crosse Board of Trade has been authorized by the company to inspect the machinery which has recently been manufactured for the plant, and to accept it, if in good order.

The secretary will leave the city tomorrow for about a weeks' business visit going first to Mason City where he will see some of the machinery, and from there to Chicago, where other parts of the plant have been made.

The secretary has been kept very busy, with considerable correspondence in regard to various plants, which wish to locate in this city.

Among those which seem feasible are an automobile factory, a passenger car and box car manufacturing plant, and a place for the manufacturing of physicians and surgeons instruments.

A new company is to be organized for the manufacturing of autos in this city which wil no doubt be in operation by the middle of next season, says Mr. Bentley.

Secretary Bentley will come home from Mason City via Chicago, where he will meet the people who are now considering the location of a passenger and box car manufacturing plant in La Crosse, so that he may make the necessary arrangements personally.

It is not known definitely whether the factory for the manufacturing of physicians and surgeons instruments can be induced to locate here or not, but the plans seem to be well under way.

Secretary Bentley said this morning that if the machinery for the Egg Carton plant was in proper condition they would no doubt be in operation here by November 1st. It is understood that they will locate in the Funke building, at 118 Main street, the office and factory recently vacated by the La Crosse Engraving company.

CHIEF BYRNE DIES AT ST. FRANCIS HOSPITAL

sion was rendered. This resulted in the choice of Chief Byrne.

Isaac Emberson was named chief by the commission appointed by White Beaver, but failed to get the position, after the supreme court ruling.

During his office as chief, Mr. Byrne inaugurated the civil service law, taking the chiefs of police and police employes from the realm of politics and lacing them upon a merit basis. The law was passed in 1897, and classified the various cities of the state, and authorized the appointment of police and fire commissions.

Not only did he work in behalf of the higher heads of the police departments of the various cities of Wisconsin, but he also took a great interest in the welfare of his men. At the last session of the Wisconsin legislature, a pension bill was passed, the creation of Chief Byrne, which allows a pension to policemen after serving twenty-two years. In event of death heirs of the policeman receive a pension, while his children also are educated. In case of accident an injury, the injured patrolman or detective receives his salary during his illness. The pension system is based on each patrolman and detective giving a certain small percentage of his monthly salary to the fund, while the city also assists in the work. The pension bill is in effect now, and has met with great favor throughout the state.

Chief Byrne politically was a democrat, although he never held office, other than his appointment on the police force.

Chief Byrne was a member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, of local lodge No. 30,, the Knights of Pythias, the Yeomen, the Modern Woodmen and the Mystic Workers. In all of these societies he was popular, because of his genial disposition and general good fellowship.

Thirty-five years ago Chief Byrne was married. One daughter, Mrs. H. J. Vesey, Chicago, Ill., was born. Surviving the chief are his widow, Mary Byrne, his daughter, Mrs. Vesey his brother, James Byrne, 231 Mill street and family, and Mrs. O'Brien, a sister, residing at Shullsburg, Wis.

The funeral will be held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock sharp from the residence, 1337 State and at 9:30 from the Cathedral, with Rev. Father Sluyter officiating. Police Justice Clinton W. Hunt has been appointed to take charge of the funeral arrangements by Mayor Wendall A. Anderson. Members of the common council, patrolmen and members of the police department, members of the societies of which Chief Byrne was a member, will attend the funeral in a body.

The central police station was a scene of sorrow and mourning today. Patrolmen and detectives, hardened to suffering, paused in their work to wipe away a tear. Many of the patrolmen and detectives wept outright over the death of their leader.

The city hall flag was raised at half mast today in respect to the dead.

OPEN COURT IN TREMPEALEAU

The regular session of circuit court will be opened tomorrow at Tempealeau court.

Judge Fruit and Court Reporter W. A. Evers will leave for there this evening.

S.S.S. KILLS THE GERMS OF SCROFULA

Through the blood, diseases are carried from one generation to another. Parents transmit them to their children, and so it goes on down the family line for years and years unless the taint is removed from the blood. Especially is this true of Scrofula, for it is a disease that is "bred in the bone," and unless the blood is purified and every trace of the trouble removed the miserable disease will finally undermine the entire health and wreck the life of its victim. The usual symptoms of Scrofula are enlarged glands or tumors about the neck, which often burst and become discharging ulcers, weak eyes, Catarrh of the head and throat, skin diseases, etc. The trouble being so firmly intrenched in the blood often attacks the bones, resulting in White Swelling, or hip disease, while a waxy, pallid appearance of the skin, loss of strength and energy, and often lung affections, show that the disease is entirely destroying the bright red corpuscles and rich, nutritive qualities of the blood. Scrofula being a constitutional disease, one affecting the entire circulation, must be treated with a remedy that builds up and strengthens every part of the system, which has so long been denied the strength and nourishment it should have received from the blood. S. S. S. is the best of all blood purifiers and the greatest of all tonics, and is therefore the ideal remedy for Scrofula. S. S. S. searches out and destroys all germs, taints and poisons, gives strength, richness and vigor to the blood and cures Scrofula permanently. It so thoroughly removes the trouble from the blood that no signs of it are ever seen again, and posterity is started out in life with a clean, pure blood supply, which is their rightful inheritance. S. S. S. while thorough, is gentle in its action, and the healing vegetable ingredients which compose it build up every part of the system. Book on the blood and medical advice free. SMILING FACES take the place of pained expressions when the teeth have been properly attended to. It is astonishing what a great difference the teeth make in one's general appearance. As the song goes, "Oh, what a difference just a few teeth make!" It is the same in old and young. Missing or decayed teeth give a very bad appearance to the countenance, but we can rectify this defect in short order if you will bring your face to us for our expert attention.

Office of the Mayor.

To the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners,
La Crosse, Wis.
Gentlemen:

It becomes my painful duty to inform you officially of the death of the chief of police of this city, who passed away this morning at St. Francis hospital.

After eleven years on the police force of this city, Hugh Henry Byrne was appointed chief on October 10th, 1890, and for seventeen years he has discharged the duties of the office so faithfully, so efficiently and so well, that his death is a great loss to our city and will be deeply deplored by the great mass of our citizens.

As a mark of respect I have directed that the flags on our public buildings be hoisted at half staff until after the funeral, and that the members of the police force wear the customary badge of mourning for thirty days.

Yours respectfully,
WENDELL A. ANDERSON,
Mayor.

RECOVER BODIES OF ILL FATED SAILORS

NINETEEN OF WRECKED CYPRESS ARE FOUND

LIFE PRESERVERS ON EACH

Men Had Perished From Exposure—Ore Cargo Shifted and Caused Boat to Go to Bottom

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 14.—The tug Schenck, which left here last night for the scene of the wreck of the steamerCypress on Lake Superior, arrived here with nineteen bodies which had been picked up on the beach.

Five bodies have been identified as members of the crew. They are those of Mr. and Mrs. William Dundon, John Smith, first mate; W. F. Smith, assistant engineer, and Geo. Thone, watchman, all of Cleveland.

Each body had a life preserver on it, but it was evident that the victims had died from exposure in the cold waters of the lake before they could reach shore. All the bodies have now been recovered except those of Capt. Huyck and two firemen.

Second Mate Pitz, the sole survivor of the wreck, was brought here on the Schenck. The Cypress lies in ninety fathoms of water on the Duluth course, eighteen miles north of Deer Park.

It is now known definitely that the wrec was due to the shifting of the iron ore cargo, which caused the steamer to list and take in water around the hatches.

List of the Dead.

The following is the complete list of the crew when the Cypress left Fairport, O., for Lake Superior. It is not probable that any changes were made, and it is probable that the list is the correct list of the dead, with the exception of Second Mate Pitz, who was the only survivor. Here is the list:

F. E. HUYCK, Sheridan, N. Y., master.
JOHN SMITH, Cleveland, O., first mate.
C. J. PITZ, second mate (rescued.)
J. J. NORCROSS, Tonawanda, N. Y., chief engineer.
WILLIAM DUNDON, Cleveland, O. steward.
MRS. WILLIAM DUNDON, his wife, assistant steward.
C. ANDERSON, wheelsman.
G. D. WELLS, Kelley's Island, wheelsman.
GEORGE THORN, Cleveland, O., lookout.
C. REUTERBERG, lookout.
W. T. SMITH, Cleveland, O., assistant engineer.
WILLIAM CHAMBERS, oiler.
JOSEPH RAY, Lorain, O., oiler.
LEON WAGNER, fireman.
ROBERT LUBERB, fireman.
L. SPENCER, fireman.
HENRY MERTLE, deckhand.
FRANK EISENBACH, deckhand.
E. PILLION, deckhand
GEORGE JOHNSON, deckhand.
C. LADDIE, porter.

A New Vessel.

The Cypress had but recently left the shipyard and was on her third trip when wrecked. That there was no storm on the lake Friday night, at least not sufficiently severe to have caused a staunch vessel to founder, is the statement of reliable lake mariners and the case presents one of the mysteries of this season's lake navigation.

Owing to the many changes made on each trip of a lake steamer it may be that some of the men named here were not on the boat. The payroll of the crew was aboard the vessel.

Pitz in Serious Condition.

The survivor, Pitz, is being given careful medical attention, in the hope that his life can be saved. He had suffered terribly from cold and exposure in addition to battling with the sea.

A careful patrol of the beach is being maintained by the life saving crew, but only two bodies have come ashore. They are those of First Mate J. J. Norcross and one unidentified.

ELOPES DESPITE WISH OF FATHER

STANLEY, Wis., Oct. 14.—(Special.)—David Grodnik and Fannie Cohen daughter of Dave's boss, went out for a walk Sunday. Dave has been forbidden the house and met Fannie on the sly. They reached the outskirts of the city, and seated themselves in a livery rig, drove to Abbotsford, and caught the Central limited for Chicago. They wired home at night that they had been married. Papa Cohen wired back that he didn't like that kind of business, but extended the hand of forgiveness and Dave and Fannie are expected home shortly to receive the blessing.

MATRIMONIAL WIFE IS GIVEN DIVORCE

MARINETTE, Wis., Oct. 14.—(Special.) — Matrimonial agencies have received a body blow here. Mrs. Marion Knapp, who obtained a divorce from Arthur Cole, former county clerk now in Waupun for embezzlement, and who is about to be released on parole, has been separated from her second husband, Henry Knapp, whom she obtained through an ad in a matrimonial peper. Cruel and inhuman treatment was given as the reason.

Tied Strap About Neck Before Jumping—Quit Bar Three Years Ago to Live in Country

RACINE, Wis, Oct. 14.—Charles B Cushman, formerly a lawyer in Milwaukee and well known as a man of great literary attainments, ended his life Sunday by tying a strap around his neck and jumping nine feet from a barn on his farm a mile west of Franksville.

For several months Mr. Cushman had been in poor health and he was about to sell his farm and move with his wife and four children to Tennessee. It was not feared at any time during his illness that he contemplated self-destruction. Mrs. Cushman is prostrated by the shock of her husband's death

Mr. Cushman was born in Baltimore, Md., of wealthy parents. He showed ability at an early age and his father gave him a liberal education. He was graduated from Knox college and later was graduated from the college of law of the University of Michigan. After completing his studies he spent several years at Palmyra and later moved to Milwaukee where he practiced law. ROAST UNION LEADER

TELEGRAPH TICKERS WILL REMAIN OUT

Request Small to Resign Immediately

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 14.—At a meeting yesterday morning that terminated in the wildest burst of enthusiasm expressed since the beginning of the strike, Milwaukee local No. 2 of the Commercial Telegraphers of America, declared the action of President S. J. Small, calling upon the various locals to go back to work, to be weak and unbefitting a leader.

The immediate resignation of President Small is requested and he is declared incompetent and entirely unfitted to further conduct the strike.

Local No. 2 passed resolutions to that effect and suggested that the active management of the strike be turned over to the national first vice president in conjunction with the national secretary-treasurer.

CUPID DEFEATS LAW

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. Cupid won a race with the minions of the law here Friday afternoon when Miss Agnes Knudsen, a girl of 16, from Davenport, Ia., was married to Frank Thompson, a former resident of the same place, but now of Kenosha. Within half an hour after the marriage ceremony had been performed the chief of police here received instructions from the chief of police at Davenport, asking that the bride be taken care of before she could be married to Thompson, and that the mother of the girl alleged that her daughter had been kidnapped. The police found the young couple enpojing their honeymoon and notified the police at Davenport that the wedding had already been performed. Later the mother of the girl wired her that parental forgiveness would be extended if the couple would return to Davenport.

DO YOUR MEALS FIT?

Do You Feel Snug and Comfortable Around Your Waist Line After a Hearty Meal?

Did your last meal taste deliciously good to you, and did you eat all you wanted? Could you have patted your rotundity in glee and felt proud of your appetite and of your good strong stomach? Do you feel rosy now because your last meal gave you no inconvenience whatever? If not, you have dyspepsia in some form, and probably never realized it.

If you have the least trouble in your stomach after eating, no matter how little or how much you eat, there is trouble brewing and you must correct it at once.

Most all stomach troubles come from poor, weak, scanty gastric juice, that precious liquid which ought to turn your food into rich, red blood.

If you have nausea, your gastric juice is weak. If you have sour risings or belchings, your food is fermenting; your gastric juice is weak. If you have loss of appetite, your gastric juice is weak. If you have a bloaty feeling of aversion to food, your gastric juice is weak.

You need something in your stomach to supply the gastric juice which is scanty, and to give power to the weak gastric juice. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do this very thing.

Now think—one grain of one of the ingredients of these wonderful little tablets digests 3,000 grains of food. They are several times more powerful than the gastric juice in a good, strong powerful stomach. They actually digest your food for you. Besides, they increase the flow of gastric juice, just what you need to get all the good possible out of everything you eat. You will never have that "lump of lead" in your stomach nor any other stomach trouble after taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Then everything you eat will be digested, it will give you strength, vim, energy and a rosy disposition. You'll feel good all around your waist line after every meal and it will make you feel good all over.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will make you feel happy after eating a good, hearty meal. Take one or two after eating. You'll feel fine—then your meals will fit, no matter what or when you eat.

We want to send you a sample package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets free of charge, so you can test them yourself and be convinced. After you have tried the sample, you will be so satisfied that you will go to the nearest drug-store and get a 50c box.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

MINNESOTA AND THE NORTHWEST

WANT MINNESOTA RIVER NAVIGABLE

COUNTIES ORGANIZE TO URGE PLAN

SEE SMALL FREIGHT BOATS

Congress Must Open Channel First—Stream Empties Into Mississippi Near Ft. Snelling, Minn.

MANKATO, Minn., Oct. 14.—A meeting of representatives from all of the counties bordering on the Minnesota river will be held next Thursday in Mankato for the purpose of forming a permanent organization to seek the improvement of the Minnesota river through Federal appropriation, the object being to make the river navigable to small freight steamers.

The preliminary arrangements for this convention were made at Belle Plaine, and 150 business men have been invited and it is expected that fully two-thirds of these will respond with their presence next Thursday. Among those expected to be present are Congressmen Hammond, Doris and Volstead, fourteen state senators and a proportionate number of house members.

At the Belle Plaine meeting State Senator S. D. Works of this city was appointed to prepare a plan of organization and to draft a plan of work. State Senator Caller of Shakopee was appointed to find out the present status of the Minnesota river as to Federal control. Both are to report at the meeting next week.

The session will open at the Saulpaugh at 1 p. m., and is being looked forward to with much interest. It is likely that the Mankato Commercial club will extend some form of entertainment to the visitors.

NORTHWEST BRIEFS

ABERDEEN, S. D.—Collections at the normal school this year for tuition, dormitory rentals, etc., already amount to about $3,000 and the money has been forwarded to the state treasurer. This is the largest amount collected in so short a time at the normal since its organization.

ST. ONGE, S. D.—While out hunting near here, Felix Cardinal shot a large pelican, believed to be the first one of its kind ever seen in this part of the country. The bird had the appearance of having traveled far and was easily bagged. It measured nearly nine feet from tip to tip of wings and had a bill thirteen inches long.

BEMIDJI, Minn.—The sink hole on the right of way of the Minnesota & Iowa railway, near Kabekona station, at last has been filled and the railway officials no longer are worried by an apparently "bottomless pit."

ST. CLOUD, Minn.—Mrs. Kate Yaeger of this city has settled with the Great Northern for $2,000 for the death of her husband and her daughter, who were killed by being struck by the Great Northern flier in this city last March. Mrs. Yaeger recently brought suit against the company for $10,000.

WINDOM, Minn.—The city fathers of Windom have screwed the lid down a little tighter by prohibiting dice shaking for cigars in the drug stores and restaurants.

ROCHESTER, Minn.—The Southeastern Minnesota Educational association will not hold its annual meeting in this city as was decided at the last meeting held at Winona. At a meeting of the executive committee it was decided to change the meeting place to Red Wing. The cause of the change was the fact that the committee was of the opinion that the city could not afford ample accommodations for the visitors. Rochester has thirty-four hotels, and they are all crowded to the limit.

ST. PETER, Minn.—There is little improvement in the condition of Charles Schwartz, the Kasota township farmer who took a swallow of carbolic acid by mistake. Mr. Schwartz went to the pantry in his home for a bottle of brandy, and his error is likely to cost him his life. Yesterday afternoon he was suffering intense pain, and it is feared that he cannot recover.

SAUK RAPIDS, Minn.—The city council has accepted the bid of a St. Paul engineer to draw the plans and specifications for the new $25,000 water works system and to superintend the installation of the mains, pumping station, stand pipe, etc. He will prepare the plans and specifications immediately that the council may let the contract by Nov. 15.

SAUK RAPIDS, Minn.—The residents of the town site of Sartell, lying partly in Benton county and partly in Stearns, have voted to incorporate as a village. Hon. William L. Sartell doubtless will be first mayor of Minnesota's youngest town.

NOT GUILTY OF ARSON

ST. JAMES, Minn., Oct. 14.—The trial of Henry Weinberg of Madelia, on the charge of attempted arson closed here in the district court and resulted in an acquittal.

Weinberg was accused of having plotted to set fire to his clothing and dry goods store at Madelia, Sept. 21. The chief witness for the state was Louis Seamins, the young clerk of the defendant, who confessed that he was employed by Weinberg to start the fire. The motive alleged was an attempt to collect more insurance than the stock was worth.

ATTEMPTED MURDER FAILS IN RESULT

WOMAN SHOT IN FACE BY UNKNOWN MAN

CALLED TO DOOR BY A RAP

Pistol is Discharged — Authorities Puzzled Whether Affair is Practical Joke or Assault

ST. PETER, Minn., Oct. 14.—Called to her door by a visitor's rap, Mrs. John Hurlbut, living in Janesville, threw it open to have a revolver fired before her face. Stupedied with fright, she stood helplessly in the doorway while an unknown man turned and fled into the darkness, and now the Janesville authorities are trying to determine whether an attempt was made to take her life or whether she was made the victim of a cruel practical joke.

When Mrs. Hurlbut met with her singular experience she was at work about her home. Going to the door in response to the summons, she found herself confronted by the unknown man. Without saying a word he leveled his weapon and fired and then turned and ran. Mrs. Hurlbut caught but a fleeting glimpse of the man as he stood in the shaft of light from the open door, and she can give no description of her assailant.

Mrs. Hurlbut was terribly frightened, and for a time was in a state of excitement and agitation bordering on the hysterical.

FIGHT IS DUE SOON ON WATERWAY PLAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Members of the inland waterways commission are far from pleased with the action of the Memphis deep waterway convention.

So emphatic is their disapproval of the committee on resolutions which squelched all matter looking toward co-operative action between the bureau of forestry, irrigation and the waterway commission that they are advocating a great popular convention, which is to be called in Washington next January. Roosevelt will approve of it and it is probable that he will allude to the matter pointedly in his annual message to congress.

WILL JEROME PUSH RYAN CASE? YES, NO?

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Possibility of criminal prosecution in connection with the investigation of the Interborough - Metropolitan traction merger has developed. District Attorney Jerome had a long conference with Chairman Willcox of the public service commission, and after the district attorney had life Mr. Willcox said that he could not make public the details of the conversation.

Jerome is quoted, however, as having said it would be wiser to prove the "moral obliquity" of Ryan and his associates than to establish a criminal intent. It is doubted that Governor Hughes cares to leave the prosecution in the luke-warm hands of Jerome, and the selection of a special state lawyer for the cases is still believed to be his plan.

LYNCH THREE IN MISSISSIPPI

TUNICA, Miss., Oct. 14.—Three negroes were taken from the jail here and lynched by unknown parties. The bodies of two of them were found dangling from a telegraph pole in front of the depot early this morning and the third is lying somewhere in the woods dead, his body full up buckshot. The negroes were arrested on Wednesday for a burglary at Robinsonville.

GIVES U. $600,000

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—John D. Rockefeller continued his benefactions to the University of Chicago with a gift of $600,000. In a letter signed by his son, the oil king notified the board of trustees that he wished to show his appreciation of Dr. William Rainey Harper by a donation of this amount to the fund for the memorial library. The present of $600,000 makes the building a certainty.

The only proviso attached to the gift is that by April 1, 1908, the university shall raise $200,000 for the library.

SHIP SHEEP NORTH

ASHLAND, Wis., Oct. 14.—(Special.)—Wisconsin sheep raisers are sending their herds to Northern Wisconsin in carloads to experiment. It has been the custom to send the sheep here at the beginning of summer to fatten them on Northern Wisconsin's rich grazing lands, but W. W. Wilson, who owns a large stock farm south of the city is receiving thousands of the woolly animals for the winter. Mr. Wilson is brother of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and a well known Chicago commission house man. The experiment, therefore, is believed to be under the auspices of the government.

BENSON, Minn. — Miss Nellie Cashman, superintendent of schools, of Swift county, tendered her resignation to the county board this week to take effect on Nov. 13.

NEGLECTED COLDS EXTREMELY DANGEROUS

Very Instructive Lecture at Mother's Conclave

At the recent mothers' convention at Jamestown the meeting was addressed by the venerable Dr. Hartwell, the Southern physician of national reputation. The principal topic of his lecture was the necessity of prompt attention to what most persons neglect, namely, common colds. He stated that three-fourths of the dread diseases of the present day have their origin in common colds which when they get into an acute and feverish state render the system liable to the attack of almost any disease with which it may come in contact.

He also stated that his long experience has taught him that the most effective remedy for the quick relief of chronic and acute coughs and colds and throat troubles is pine and advised the use of what is known to the professon as Concentrated oil of pine.

This is to be used in the following formula: Two ounces of glycerine, one half ounce Concentrated oil of pine, half pint of first class whiskey; these to be mixed and used in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours shaking the bottle well each time. The ingredients are obtainable at any good prescription druggist and easily mixed at home. Care should be taken to get only the Concentrated oil of pine which comes put up for dispensing in half ounce vials securely sealed in round birch wood cases. The bulk oils and patent medicine imitations usually cause nausea and other undesirable complications.

OLD PASTOR IS HERE

REV. SWEET TO BE AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Leaves Soon for Another Oriental Trip

Rev. W. S. Sweet and wife arrived in the city Saturday to spend a few days visiting friends. Rev. Sweet will be remembered as a former pastor of the First Baptist church of La Crosse, resigning his pastorate here to become a missionary to China. Mr. and Mrs. Sweet returned from their foreign field of labor to this country some two years ago to regain their health. These few days spent in La Crosse will be in the nature of a farewell visit for on the 29th of this month they leave San Francisco to again take up their labors among the peoples of the Orient.

Rev. Sweet's work among the Chinese has not only been a directly religious work but also an educational one. He has founded and built up a large boys' and girls' school named Wayland Academy after the school by that name at Beaver Dam, Wis. While in this country Rev. Sweet has been able to interest large numbers of friends in his work and he returns to the orient prepared to greatly enlarge his school and mission.

Rev. Sweet occupied his former pulpit at the First Baptist church at both the morning and evening services yesterday.

CUPID GIVEN A BLOW

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 14.—(Special.)—Cupid surely had a "blue Monday" today. Rev. Samuel Moldenhauer, "marriage merchant," who came here from Kewaskum several months ago to spend his declining days and eke out an existence advertising and conducting a "marriage bureau," left today for Black Wolf, north of Fond du Lac, to take charge of a small Lutheran congregation and continue his marriage operations. He left Milwaukee because the other ministers of his faith were in a combine against him, he says.

DON'T SEEK DEATH NOW

DECATUR, Ill., Oct. 14.—At the conclusion of today's session of the Magill trial the attorneys for the state in private conversation practically acknowledged defeat; they have abandoned the plan to demand capital punishment; they will congratulate themselves if they get a fourteen years' sentence for Magill.

The College Girl's Rescue.

"I believe in a college education for girls," said a professor, "but the girl who comes out of college thinking that she knows a great deal has not profited by her four years' course, for, after all, it is but a smattering that a college education gives us.

"Most girls know this. Many do not. The latter sort carry themselves superciliously, use big words, correct ignorant persons' grammar and fail to make a good marriage. In fact, they create a bad impression everywhere.

"Thus there was a girl—a Vassar girl—who got caught by the incoming tide out on a rock. The tide rose higher and higher, and the girl shrieked and screamed madly for help.

"Help came at last in the shape of a grizzled old shellback in a flat bottomed boat. The girl, as soon as she saw the shellback, recovered her poise and said in her most affected manner:

"'Ah, I knew some succor would come if I but continued calling indefatigably.'

"The shellback scowled.

"'Waal, miss,' he said, 'if that's how ye express yer gratitood the sucker'll be durned if he don't row back without ye.'"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Bad Judgment.

William—Did the baby come from heaven, mamma? Mamma—Yes, dear. William—Huh! That kid didn't know when he was well off, did he?—Chicago News.

DEVELOP ROCK RIVER

JEFFERSON, Wis., Oct. 14—(Special.)—Cities along the Rock river are starting a movement to ask congress for a big appropriation to develop the Rock river into a commercial stream. The development work will start here, as the Crawfish river joins the Rock in the center of the city. Years ago before there were any dams at Janesville, Fort Atkinson, Jefferson, Watertown and cities in Illinois, a Mississippi river steamboat navigated the Rock up to the Main street bridge in Jefferson.

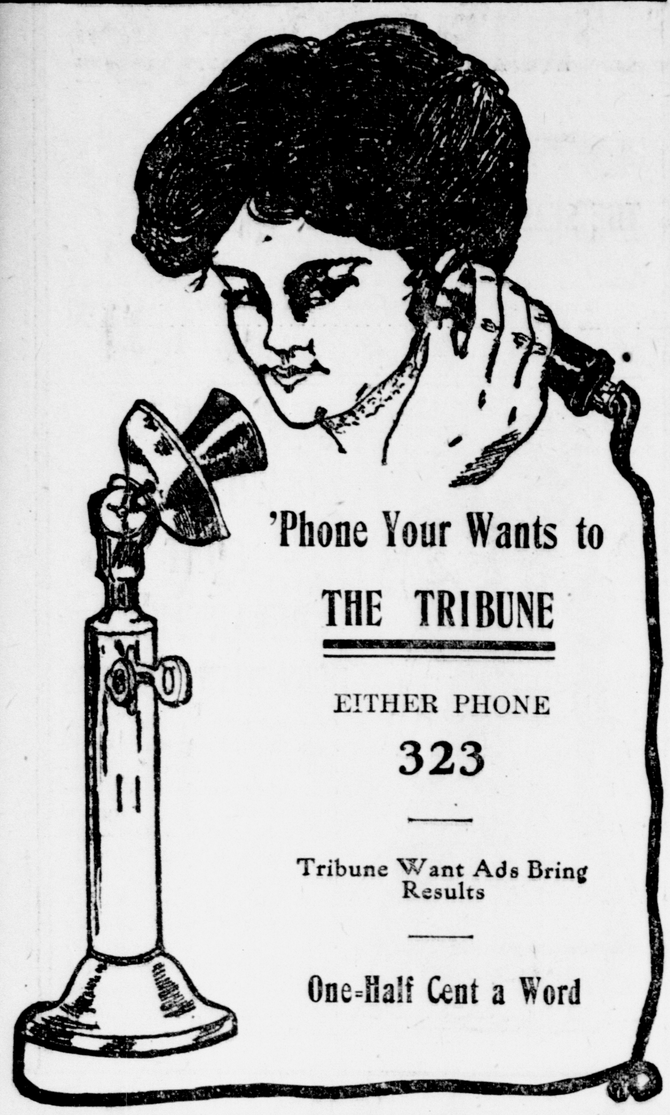

AN ERRATIC CLASSIFICATION.

MISERLINESS.

Starving and Saving For Others to Spend When You're Dead.

"I'm not opposed to a man saving money," remarked the undertaker, lighting a fresh cigar, "but I can't help feeling that it is wrong for one to do it by meanness and by denying oneself comforts. It is because I see so much of this that I feel this way.

"Whatever is the reason I must say that in my observation the usual result is that when one has saved up money by this self denial the ones who receive the money after death usually waste it.

"To illustrate this let me tell you of a specific case. A few years ago an elderly woman died in our city. I was called to care for the remains. I assure you that the room into which I went was one of the barest and most desolate places I ever saw. There was none of those little things which go to make a room comfortable and cheerful. I couldn't but help thinking that the poor woman's life had been a dreary one. In a way I still think so.

"She was a maiden lady about seventy. In the town was one woman who had been her friend. She sent word to me to bring the remains there. No one supposed the deceased had a cent in the world. When we were about to remove the body the people of the house called my attention to a small box which they said contained all the effects of the dead woman.

"When we opened that box we found that it contained $5,000, the old lady's saving of a lifetime.

"In her efforts to hoard up this money she had gone without comforts and necessities; had denied herself every little luxury. What for? Answer it if you can. I can't.

"A relative, the nearest one and the only heir, came on from a middle Atlantic state and took the remains home with her for burial. She also took the money. On the day of the funeral she had several hacks at a cost of $15 each, then she made the driver of each hack a present of $5, gave the driver of the hearse the same sum and each of the two men who dug the grave $5 and spent $2,500 for a monument. The rest of the $5,000 she blew. At the end of six months every dollar of it was gone.

"And that old lady had gone without necessities of life to accumulate it.

"And, my friend, that is but one of several cases—yes, of scores of them—that I could recite to you did I have the mind."—Lewiston Journal.

AN ENIGMA IN STONE.

"Nirvana" In the Rock Creek Cemetery at Washington.

So many things may be said of St Gaudens—of the traits of his genius, his modesty, his deep sympathy with all who possessed high ideals or who had noble thoughts; of his own noble generosity, his willingness to sacrifice himself for the advancement of art, his keen perception of beautiful character, or of a fine impulse that often shone for him out of the most commonplace of lives or of features. One incident of many, says Harper's Weekly, may not only illustrate him, but help to illumine a masterpiece of his which has perplexed some minds that may be worth the enlightening. "The work is the figure of 'Nirvana' in the Rock Creek cemetery at Washington. St. Gaudens was in Washington in the winter of 1902, making his beautiful relief of Wayne MacVeagh and Mrs. MacVeagh, and Hildegarde Hawthorne was there, too, and visited more than once that dreaming figure in the cemetery. At last she was moved to write some verses, which she sent to a magazine, but the editor thought that he had seen verses on the sculptor's work that better expressed its sentiments, and returned the verses with the stimulating suggestion that some day he would show the young woman some real poetry about the figure. St. Gaudens, too, had seen both poems, and when he heard of this expression of the editor's he wrote to him and said that Hildegarde Hawthorne had divined his intention as no writer had done, and therefore the verses are in print. So, if you like, you may solve the riddle by reading them."

Didn't Want Much.

Here is an advertisement from an old copy of an English provincial journal: "Wanted, for a sober family, a man of light weight, who fears the Lord and can drive a pair of horses. He must occasionally wait at table, join the household prayer, look after the horses and read a chapter of the Bible. He must, God willing, arise at 7 o'clock in the morning and obey his master and mistress in all lawful commands; if he can dress hair, sing psalms and play at cribbage, the more agreeable. Wages, 15 guineas a year."

TALLOW SALVORS.

The Men Who Skim Grease Off the Sea at Launching Time.

One of the most anxious moments for battleship builders arrives when a new vessel is launched. And, by the way of compensation, this is the time when the tallow salvors are joyous.

The day fixed for the ceremony of launching is reached, and, as usually happens when a battleship is to be launched, a big crowd assembles. The battleship rests on "slipways," down which she will glide from the dock yard into the water. The only thing that prevents the ship from sliding into the water before the proper time is the "dog shores"—large pieces of wood that keep in position the cradle upon which the battleship rests. When the cord that releases the dog shores is cut the battleship glides down the slipways into the water amid the cheers of the spectators and the playing of the band.

The slipways have to be made as smooth and as slippery as it is possible to make them, so that nothing shall prevent the battleship from gliding into the water safely. It is the greasy substance with which these slipways are covered that calls forth the joy of the tallow salvors.

Since the slightest mishap at the launching would almost certainly prove to be a very costly matter, no pains are spared to insure that everything, including the ship, goes smoothly, and the greasing of the slipways is properly regarded as an important task.

The material used in the process is generally tallow mixed with linseed oil or soft soap, and this is smeared on to the ways to a thickness of about two inches. Every inch of the ways must be covered carefully, and a host of men are employed in the work. First of all the tallow is spread on with trowels, so as to give a smooth and flat surface, and then the soft soap or linseed oil is poured on top. Between one and one and a half tons of the mixture is used in the case of a battleship, and the cost of launching amounts to a good sum, something like £800 or £1,000.

The tallow salvors get ready to reap the harvest.

Crowding the water just where the ship is to be launched will be seen a number of small rowing boats belonging to the tallow salvors. As the vessel glides into the water the tallow which has clung to the keel and bottom plates from the ways becomes loosened and floats to the water's surface in great masses.

Then the tallow salvors swarm around. Bared to the shoulder, they reach over the sides of their boats and proceed to gather in as much of the floating tallow as they can. Some of them even have small hand nets to help them, but in any case it is only a question of a few minutes before the boats are covered, both inside and out, with the slippery, oily mixture, while in the center small heaps of fat gradually arise. No ordinary person could remain in the boats, but the tallow salvors are not at all particular. They row off with their loads and dispose of them to the local soap makers. Sometimes as much as £2 or £3 can be made by a very agile tallow salvor.—London Answers.

Poe's Devotion to His Wife.

No picture of Poe in Philadelphia would be complete, writes E. P. Oberholtzer in Book News, if we do not remember his poetic attachment for his girl wife and his love for high literary ideals, so faithfully evidenced in his own writing and in his criticism of the work of other men. "His love for his wife was a sort of rapturous worship of the spirit of beauty which he felt was fading before his eyes." Mr. Graham wrote after the poet's death: "I have seen him hovering around her when she was ill, with all the fond fear and tender anxiety of a mother for her firstborn, her slightest cough causing in him a shudder, a heart chill that was visible. I rode out one summer evening with them, and the remembrance of his watchful eyes eagerly bent upon the slightest change of hue in that loved face haunts me yet as the memory of a sad strain." Recollecting that when she was gone honest sorrow mingled with the poverty that hung about him like a thick cloud through which no sun shone, we can afford to forgive much in those last missent days.

fective oral expression can not naturally follow.

If the subject matter be uninteresting, having little or nothing in common with his more pronounced interest, we must expect him to read it mechanically and with evident indifference.

"Fotoball at Rugby," though excellent material under certain conditions would not be likely to beget much enthusiasm in a class of children who had never played or even witnessed a game of football.

A series of lessons on "Ants," "More About Ants," "African Ants," etc., would under general conditions prove to be dry and uninteresting.

Thus the best of readers contain material which might better be eliminated and the true teacher studies her text with the view of giving to the child the most of the best in the short time alotted her.

However, with the variety of splendid readers systematically graded and based upon child interest, that are within easy reach, it seems that the danger of giving material not adapted to the child at his stage of progress is reduced to a minimum.

We must seek then for the great cause for lack of expression in the poor adjustment of the child to his lesson and environment.

The modern primary teacher introduces her reading work with beginners by conversation lessons and tactful chats, thus becoming acquainted with her pupil and causing him unconsciously to feel at home in his new sphere.

Meanwhile she has been paving the way for free and natural expression on his part and the sentences she uses as a basis for the reading lesson are those he has himself framed. He utters his own thoughts to the teacher who in turn gives them written form. He learns to associate this written form with his original thought and takes delight in reading the same not in a monotonous, listless fashion, but as if it were a living part of himself.

She realizes that her success is measured by the amount of interest she arouses in her pupil and she constantly calls to her assistance that potent factor in child life which we term imagination.

The primer is made a series of pages from his own little life and the experiences there related he is made to feel as his own.

Thus he forgets that he is in that dreaded school room, the teacher is only an earnest, sympathetic friend and he is simply talking to her. No great need to worry about expression there; it bursts forth spontaneously, unconsciously.

But is this a type of the reading lessons that follow—we'll say in the intermediate and grammar grades? If so, why this remark so often made—that pupils of the lower grades read with better expression than those of the higher? Will the oft repeated apology, "He is so self-conscious!" serve as a legitimate excuse for all or nearly all of the expressionless calling of words that we hear in our class rooms today?

I wonder if the trouble does not more often in the strained relation of child to subject matter. We have on the one hand the pupil, on the other the lesson; and the duty of the teacher is to bring child and lesson into such intimate relationship that the one becomes a living part of the other.

How may this be accomplished?

Granted that the child has mastered the words and other mechanical necessaries, his ability of thought-getting must also be tested by careful questions and oral reproduction.

But when this is done there yet remains a vital step—a phase of the lesson which is at the very foundation of inteligent and effective reading. It is the creation of a wholesome and harmonious atmosphere, placing the gem in its proper setting.

Vivid and accurate mental pictures of the characters and scenes must be formed, the purpose of the author felt—in short, the child must be transplanted into another world.

"When thou readest look steadfastly at the things the words symbolize. If there be question of mountains let them loam up before thee if of the ocean, let its billows roll before thy eyes. This habit will give to the voice pliancy and meaning. The more sources of interest we have, the richer is our life. To hold any portion of truth is better than have its whole baggage stored in one's memory."

How many of our students of Scott's "Lady of the Lake" are taught to see the breaking of dawn over the wild crags of Benvoirlich and to hear "the deep-mouthed bloodhounds heavy bay resounding up the rocky way" and farther in the distance the clanging of the huntsman's horn and the clatter of steeds over the stony ground?

Do they see the noble stag spring, startled from his midnight lair and have they full realization of the situation ere they read:

"As chief, who hears his warder call,
'To arms! the foeman storms the wall,'
The antlered monarch of the waste
Sprung from his heathery couch in haste
But ere his fleet career he took,
The dew drops from his flanks shook;;
Like crested leader proud and high
Tossed his beamed frontlet to the sky; A moment gazed adown the dale,
A moment snuffed the tainted gale,
A moment listened to the cry,
That thickened as the chase drew nigh;
Then as the headmost foes appeared,
With one brave bound the copse he cleared,
And, stretching forward free and far,
Sought the wild heaths of Uam-Var."

Again, in strong contrast, do they picture James-Fitz-James at the moment when he is impatiently striving with spur and rein to rouse his hrose that has fallen exhausted in the rugged dell?

Shortly he realizes his efforts are in vain and touched with pity and remorse he sorrowed o'er the expiring horse:

"I little thought, when first thy rein
I slacked upon the banks of Seine,
That Highland eagle e'er should feed
On thy fleet limbs, my matchless steed!
Woe worth the chase, woe worth the day,
That costs thy life, my gallant gray!"

Many reading lessons admit of dramatization and if judiciously utilized would aid materially in obtaining better expression.

It is the dramatic instinct that made possible a Gladstone, a Lincoln, a Beecher. This poyer contributes to the success of every individual whether he occupy the pulpit, the political platform or the more ordinary walks of life.

In acting the part of any character well the individual adapts his views and his feelings and expresses himself naturally.

It is the spirit which must be reached before effective expression can be expected. To be satisfied with reaching the intellect, fastening the forms of words, and the figures of tables is unworthy of one who has read of the enduring work done by the Great Teacher—Jesus of Nazareth.

In this industrial age with all its clamor for facts and practical money-making-knowledge there is a tendency to overestimate the purely physical and material—and this, at the expense of the ideal.

Make the reading lesson something far greater than the acquisition of facts. Let it serve to elevate, to ennoble, to grandly mould the character of our youth. Make it the pleasantest period of the day cast to the four winds of heaven all petty annoyances and prejudices live with the best authors and forget self in giving utterance to their thoughts. And bear in mind that "Every flower you plant along another's path sheds part of its fragrance on yours."

Politeness is become so rare that the man who is polite is regarded with suspicion as wanting to make a touch.

Going to law is a good bit like going abroad. You want to book your return passage while you have the money.

COLUMBUS DINNER PROVES SUCCESS

Weis of the local council. Beautiful candelabra and elaborate menu cards greatly enhanced the gayety of the scene, which will be a memorable one

Excellent Toasts.

The banquet over, Toastmaster Evans called upon Mr. Thomas B. Hill to respond to the toast, "A Second Landing." Mr. Hill said in part:

"We meet here tonight to celebrate the landing of Christopher Columbus upon these shores 415 years ago, and it is well to consider the causes that gave rise to the discovery of this great continent. Columbus did not care to prove the world was round. That was conceded by most people of any education, but he had heard of a pagan people who were supposed to reside on these shores and it was for the purpose of planting the banner of the cross here that he worked hard for eighteen long years to gain recognition at the court for financial aid to carry out his project. He finally succeeded in convincing the court of Spain, the queen pledging her precious jewels toward the project. Men would get far more out of life today if they were strengthened by those same blessings of the church and the encouragement of women.

"Woman's assistance has thus been dedicated to the church and God for all time to come. The cross of Christ preceded Columbus. No danger was too dark for his venturesome spirit. When he had carried his message of the discovery home, all nations sent people to learn of the land he had discovered.

Order Is Formed.

"Villages grew up, and they were finally forced as it were, to make a second landing, such as had impelled them to overcome all obstacles four centuries ago, when they were called upon to fight the Indians.

"Twenty-five years ago this order held their first meeting and formed a society mainly for the purpose of protection, similar to many of the non-Catholic societies. It was based upon charity, unity, brotherly love, and patriotism, but was purely an insurance organization. It was first introduced in the west about twelve years ago and prospered and gave new life to the country. The organization now extends into the golden grain fields of the southwest, into the Everglades of Florida, and in fact all over the country, even into the Philippine isles, and its end is not yet. It is not so bold an optimist who foretells the day when it shall be found in every country and clime under the sun.

"At first it did not seem to attract and was ignored by clergy and bishops. It grew slowly but surely, and was finally recognized by the priests and bishops as the lay arm of the church. The flower of Catholicism may be accepted with pardonable pride. The members had to make good. But a short tmie ago the blessings of the holy father inspired the order with new encouragement and hope by declaring it the only Catholic society within its jurisdiction which could raise $5,000 for the Catholic university at Washington.

A Noble Work.

"If the order is true in every walk of life, social, civil and political, in the great brotherhood of man, and is true to the church in the propagation of the faith, there is no reason why the song of the angels, 'Peace on earth, good will' shall not be fulfilled.

'But the work must be carried no and extended to the children of the public schools so as to make them broad gauged and broad minded, so that they will love truth and justice, so that the country may become truly Catholic as in the beginning. Remember, no matter what station these mortals may be in, if they are true to their principles, to their church, to their state, and take an active part in the bettering of the civic and political life, accompanied by high ideals, it will bring about the fulfillment of the angels' song at Bethlehem, 'Peace on earth, good will to men.'"

An Irish Story.

Dr. Evans then told a story of an Irishman, an Englishman and a Scotchman who were holding a session during which the Englishman asked the Scotchman what he would rather be if he were not Scotch. "Oh," said the Scotchman, "I guess I would rather be English." The Scotchman then asked the Englishman the same question and received the answer from the Englishman that he guessed he would then wish to be Scotch.

Simultaneously turning to the Irishman they asked him what he would rather be if he were not Irish. "Is it what I would be if I was not Irish? Begob, I would be ashamed of myself." And then he added that any Catholic who was not a Knight of Columbus when he had a chance to be should be ashamed of himself.

Rev. Murphy.

The toast master called upon Rev. Ambrose Murphy of the St. James church to respond to the Toast, "The Ladies," and said that La Crosse is prone to laugh at Father Murphy's wit, but that his sentiments were most revered and that he was the tenderest to teach and the tenderest to preach.

Rev. Murphy at once told the toastmaster that he had considerable "gall," and then rendered an apology for the non-presence of T. W. Burns who was to have spoken upon the toast, but whom the speaker said, was "one of those bashful young men who was afraid of the ladies like Messrs. Langenbach and Dr. Egan.

"But," he added, "they are not to be blamed.

"They are stranded high and dry. You can't tell what ladies will do. As the men go to begging along the highway of life," he said, "it is but occasionally that they receive just compensation; they only have a hardened ice cold marble heart dropped into their little tin cup.

"But I am not familiar with this topic. In order to speak well one must be familiar with his topic and if I began to get familiar every one here would be fairly well scandalized.

"I was going to say it was an 'old subject,'" he said, "but that won't do either." Picking up the program, he said, "I see the toastmaster has made an extraction from the bible. I don't know where he borrowed it. It reads 'Her children rose up and called her blessed; her husband, and he praised her. Proverbs vxxi, 28.' That husband is dead long ago.

"But women are a necessity. We could not get along without them in or out of church. I know I would be mighty lonesome in church if there were no women there. Men are supposed to be stronger, but when it comes to a show down the women are their superior in many ways. In endurance of pain and suffering women greatly excel the men as will be proven by the word of any physician.

"Wherever we find civilization worthy the name we find woman. On the field of battle you will find the men at the front in the carnage, slaughtering their fellowmen, but where you find the woman she will be binding up wounds and giving consolation to those in want and distress. She is a superior work, we must admit. Woman is the superior part of the human race. But there is no great division, our interests are the same, same parents, same brothers and sisters, two in one flesh, same religion, same law and God, and their destiny is the same. Elevate man and you elevate woman, elevate woman and you elevate the whole human race," he said. "The greater the height the greater the fall and therefore when woman falls she falls very low. Many of them could no doubt be saved and rescued by the proper perseverance in the proper way. They should not be dragged down, but helped.

"I work on Sundays," he continued, "and you work every other day. We are all workers, but I am not able to work some of you as much as I would like to. And we should be proud of work.

"Factories where women work should be made as agreeable as possible. This is absolutely necessary for the preservation of the human race. If men received a sufficient wage the women would not have to work," he said. "But somehow this cannot be at the present time. If a woman does a man's work, she should not work for low wages, but should receive a man's pay. Woman has done much for the church and she should continue to do so. If it were not for the church she might still be bought and sold as a slave as is done yet in Mohammedan and un-Christian countries. The Catholic church has a model for them in the blessed mother of Christ. They should hold her up as a model, for the highest individual next to God is woman. The spirit of knighthood still predominates to a great extent today.

"Christianity lifted women up and it is the only power which can.

"In that depends their salvation in this world as well as in the next."

"Our Responsibility."

"Our Responsibility" was the toast to which J. F. Healy of Fort Dodge responded to in one of the foremost addresses of the night.

Mr. Healy opened by quoting the saying of some men that they "Would rather win in Bohemia." Bohemia's men are but adopted sons, he said. Sooner or later they would learn of the moistureless froth of the social show, of the smile restraint and respectable cant, and would then long for the glow of the friendly mind and the friendly heart.

"Education is an important part of all," he said. "The increase of crime is due to want of obedience and submission to the proper authority, in home, church, law, and to the country's flag, and 'by country's flag I mean disobedience of the country's law, which is represented by our flag.

"Could we but again have the old fashioned 'fatherhood' and 'motherhood.' Could those words of the Germans, 'Mutter und Heimth' (Mother and home) but be transplanted in this country with the same dignity and honor.

"How little have we to regret in the last 400 years just passed and how much to be thankful for. The world has never before seen such an age of political and religious toleration as we have in this country today.

"We are getting along with our non-Catholic friends excellently and all work with the same enthusiasm, hand in hand, to accomplish any desired end.

"Think of La Miserables who said, 'I have bought your soul for God.'

"We are a reverent people. It is easy to say that we can get along without God, easy to say that we can take him out of our lives and civilization, but it is impossible to do so.

"Maude Ballington preached that noble doctrine, 'It is human to err, but divine to forgive.' Sir Philip Sydney pushed the untasted water from his parched lips as he lay dying on the battlefield and handed it to one of the enemy who was badly wounded with the words, 'Thou hast much more to bear than I.'

"We must make sacrifices.

"There shall not be a double rule of morals for man and for women, who extends feminine kindnesses to the wretched.

"Blessed should be the sisters who take in the wanderers of the streets.

"We should be willing to make a sacrifice for country, church, individual, or stranger, remembering the sacrifice of all sacrifices on Calvary.

"The daily experiences of the courts where we see youths and girls 15, 18, 25 years of age on the highroad to the penitentiary, tells the said story.

"We must awaken to a realization of these things. The church, country flag, home, woman, all; let these be our ideals, as life goes on."

He closed by reciting that beautiful poem of Tennyson, one line of which runs, "And let there be no moaning of the bar when I put out to sea."

A vote of thanks was given to Messrs. Hill and Healy for their courtesy in being present.

The toastmaster called upon William Doerflinger of the Park store for a toast on "Making Good."

Mr. Doerflinger's Speech.

M.. Doerflinger said:

"But words are things, and a small drop of ink,
Falling, like dew, upon a thought, produces
That which makes thousands, perhaps millions think."

—Lord Byron.

"I see that I shall have the last word and that reminds me of a little story heard not long ago. A certain man died and a clergyman was engaged to offer an eulogy. The good minister prepared a sermon of great length and strength; but just before he stepped into the parlor to deliver the same it occurred to him that it might be a good idea to learn the dead man's last words, so turning to one of the weeping younger sons, he said: 'My boy, can you tell me your father's last words?' 'He didn't have any,' the boy replied. 'Ma stayed with him to the end.'

"Now, I am supposed to talk on the subject of 'Making Good,' but I am afraid that I will disappoint you, for practically everything that pertains to that subject has been very ably expounded by the brilliant speakers that have preceded me, and even if I made a feeble attempt to dwell on this subject it would prove a dismal failure.

"Perhaps it's not out of order to explain why I was asked to speak here this evening. A few weeks ago Dr. Evans asked me whether I would be willing to reply to a toast and I told him that I would be very glad to do so, but it was very questionable whether I would be in the city at that time, and advised him to get some one else, but to compromise the matter I said: 'Doctor, if I am here, I will be there, and if I am there I'll say a few words.' So you see I am here and here is where my trouble begins. Of course, had I known that there would be such eloquence on tap here this evening I would have never made the promise, because, after all, speech-making is not in my line as I explained at a former occasion, when I was asked to speak, that when I was a boy at school I could get up and say my little piece as well ast he next one, but since I am married my wife generally does the talking and I am all out of practice.

"However, since I am on the program I am going to talk, eevn though I have nothing to talk about. Now, really, nothing is easier than to talk about nothing. On the other hand, notihng is more difficult than to say much about nothing. Is there such a thing as nothing? Really not, for everything in this great world is more or less something and this little or big something we are told was created out of nothing. Now then, if something can be created out of nothing, then this nothing must be something. Of course, the infidel or free-thinker believes, and honestly believes, that everything he sees in this great universe owes its existence to nothing. Yet, he believes nothing.

The Mother-in-Law.

"But since I have been talking about nothing it just occurred to me that there is one subject which has not been touched upon, and I am really surprised it has not, because it vitally interests most of us—and that is our mothers-in-law. Oh, I see some smiles, but I assure you I am not referring to the mother-in-law you generally see pictured in the funny papers. Quite to the contrary. To my notion the mother-in-law is a much abused personality. This abuse, as a rule, does not come from the younger element—I mean men who get married at a reasonable age—but it generally emanates from men who have become old "bachs,' old cronies, who never think of getting married until they get the rheumatism, or gout, or some other physical ailment. Then they believe it would be a nice thing to get married to have some one to take care of them. Now, these 'bachs,' as a rule, have acquired such abominable habits, tempers and dispositions that the wife feels called upon to wean them of some of them, but meets with very poor success. It is at this stage of the game that the good-hearted mother-in-law ventures to give some advice or volunteers to make some suggestions, and it is here where the trouble begins, and the poor mother-in-law gets all the blame. Now, I wish it understood, however, that there are exceptions. There are men who are so infatuated and so devoted to their mothers that their whole ambition seems to be to make their mothers happy—to give them every comfort and to provide plenty of sunshine for their old age. There are men who would rather enjoy the love of a dear old mother than the affection and caresses of the most beautiful woman that ever lived. Now, men of this kind should not be condemned, but admired, for a man who is good to his mother, invariably will be good to his wife.

Is Somebody's Mother.

"What is a mother-in-law? Every mother-in-law is the mother of some one, and you will all agree with me that, above all things, we love and adore our mothers. 'Mamma' is the first little word the infant in the cradle lulls. 'Mother' is the child's second word. No matter how bitterly it weeps or cries, the endearing hound of a mother's voice will instantly pacify it. The affectionate gleam in a mother's eye will alleviate the most intense pain or suffering The child longs for its mother, no matter how short her absence, even more so than if the father is away from home for days, for weeks, yes, for months. If anything troubles the tender mind it complains to its mother, for nowhere on God's wide world can one find sweeter consolation, sweeter solace, sweeter repose and more sublime comfort, than on the bosom of a dear, dear mother. Even grown-up children are more attached to the mother than the father, which is perfectly natural, for a mother's love surpasses in sincerity, in profoundness and in intensity, all other love and affection.

"Just see how she will lavish her love and affection on the little tot in the earliest days of its earthly existence. How she will kiss and caress the little dozing, slumbering creature, long before it has any conception of its surroundings. The slightest progress inthe physical or intellectual development in the child is a source of joy and delight for her. With what angel-like patience she will repeat and repeat, and again repeat and repeat the same identical word, until the child can finally comprehend and articulate it. How tenderly she will fold the little sweetheart's hand and teach it to pray. What pains she takes, until finally it ventures its first step, and with what overwhelming joy she watches teh little darling when it takes its first trip across the floor. How she grieves and worries when it becomes ill or suffers pain.

"With anguished mind she will sit at its little bed for days, for weeks, yes, if neecssary for months, absolutely refusing to take rest or sleep, even though her own health may be at stake. For her child she lives, for her child she will die, and woe to the man who dares to do harm to her little idol. Then the weak, tired and amiable woman becomes a heroine and fears no one but God.

"Her child itshe best, the prettiest, the smartest, the dearest, the eweetest, for she looks through the smoked glass of motherly love. Even the unruly and naughty child enjoys her love and affection. She will caution, she will plead, she will warn, she will pray, and she hopes, hopes long after the father has given up all hope. But on the other hand, with what ineffable kindness she will treat the obedient and dutiful child. How tenderly she will provide for its everywant. Truly, truly the devotion of a mother for her child is inexplicable. Day and night she will worry and scheme and plan to devise ways and means to provide a bright and happy future for her child, and as it progresses in life and its efforts are crowned with a certain measure of success the joy of a mother is unbounded. Her last word is a word of blessing, her last sigh a prayer for her child.

Mother's Joy.

"And when we speak of the joy of a mother, it is a difficult matter to understand the meaning of motherly joy. To look into the beaming and radiant countenance of a truly happy mother is a treat that only the grandeur of heaven can surpass. No mortal being ever had the privilege of seeing a more exalted and a more sublime sight than a tear in the eye of a mother that was caused by the happiness of her child. No diamond is sobrilliant or so lustrous as a tear of motherly love.

"Now, my friends, I have endeavored to paint you a word-picture of a mother, of a mother-in-law, and I believe you will all agree with me that she is not a fit subject for ridicule, but an object of love and adoration, and I know you will all join me in the hope that our mothers and mothers-in-law will live to a ripe old age, and that the happiness of their children will provide for their last days on earth a beautiful sunset."
